BEATING KILLED BANKER MURDOCK, PROBE SHOWS

By Arthur Brisbane

MISS TEXAS GUINAN, night club lady of New York, barred from France, also from England, was touched when a gallant Englishman offered to marry her, and to make it possible for her to enter England. But Miss Guinan said no, and sailed away, leaving the gentleman, as he admitted, "without money to get back to London."

Miss Guinan, a philosopher, says, as she sails for home, "An indiscretion a day keeps depression away." She went aboard the ship "wearing a velvet riding habit, patent leather boots and a white beret." The Englishman that didn't marry her is as well off. It would be too much of a job for any one Englishman.

Good news of the wheat crop in Texas, enormous crops. And that, as usual, was bad news for wheat growers. Under our intelligent system of agriculture and marketing, good crops in wheat or cotton mean trouble and poor prices for farmers.

With a cessation of government buying and "pyramiding," the price of American wheat fell sharply yesterday, as might be expected. In one hour June wheat dropped 12½ cents in Chicago.

Old "supply and demand" is patient, waits and wins.

While our farmers mourn about "too much wheat" and other Americans mourn too much cotton, coal, oil, etc., Russia is rejoicing in the certainty of a bumper wheat harvest, a crop of one billion three hundred and fourteen million bushels, and a surplus, for dumping, of two hundred and fifty-two million bushels.

A great wheat crop means cash for Russia, sorrow for other nations. There must be good business men in Russia, in spite of their "fanciful theories."

Many politicians, taking for granted Governor Roosevelt's nomination by the Democrats in 1932, are concentrating on "who will run for Vice-President?"

It takes a brave or reckless man to undertake the running of this country just now. Those "out of it" are perhaps fortunate. But love of public office is a passion.

A thousand men would have accepted the nomination for mayor in Pompeii after the ashes began falling, if there had been mayors in Pompeii.

Leaders of young people's Catholic organizations in Rome, arrested, are held, possibly for deportation to Lipari, an island penitentiary reserved for political offenders. The honorary general president of the Italian Catholic young people's organization is among those arrested. Mayor Curley, of Boston, now in Rome, after an interview with the Italian King, says the Italian and Papal governments will soon straighten out their troubles. But the facts are not encouraging.

The worst of anti-Catholic disturbance is the destruction of beautiful churches and ancient monasteries. Political and religious troubles can be straightened out and forgotten. But ancient works of art destroyed can never be replaced. Respect for their country, if not for their religion, should prevent such irreparable outrages.

In New York two automobiles loaded with gangsters settled their differences yesterday with machine guns in the crowded street. A few were killed. The police know who they are and what beer-running organizations and rivalries they represent.

But until rivals in the world of crime and bootlegging begin killing each other in public, police appear unable to do anything about their activities, although they know all about them.

Two boys of 15, starting their New York career of crime early, held up a store. One was shot.

We live in a crime age, and bootlegging brought it on us. What brought bootlegging?

The general assembly of the Presbyterian Church, in Pittsburgh, approves "a national daily newspaper, to be distinctively Christian in its spirit and outlook, and to stand for our highest ideals." The assembly thinks such a newspaper, "adequately financed," would be of great benefit to the cause of Righteousness.

It would, of course, and it would have to be VERY adequately financed.

It would be hard for the able editor and manager to remain "distinctively Christian in spirit" after being in the newspaper business a little while, and learning how this country is really run.

Could you, for instance, imagine what the good Presbyterian editor would think, feel and say when he discovered that the really enthusiastic supporters of prohibition are bootleggers, gangsters and speakeasy men?

A step in the right direction of common sense is the government's decision not to appeal

LINDY AND HIS WIFE TO HOP PACIFIC

"Lone Eagle" Plans Air Tour in Asia; Will Start the Flight in Month

Washington, June 4 (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh will leave within a month for a flying tour of the Far East, making the trip by air across the North Pacific.

Mrs. Lindbergh will accompany him.

The exact date of his departure has not been determined, but it is learned, the State Department is asking the expenses of all governments for permission for him to land in those countries.

Although the trip across the north Pacific will not involve any long water hops, Col. Lindbergh is taking every safety precaution.

WON'T TAKE BABY

His Lockheed monoplane will be equipped with pontoons and he will make fueling arrangements at necessary points. State Department officials said that it was necessary for Lindbergh to land on the Soviet territory of Siberia, he would secure permission privately as other fliers do when planning flights over Soviet territory.

The purpose of the trip, Lindbergh told the department, was to tour the Orient. The Lindberghs will not take their young son.

Should Lindbergh desire to fly directly from American to Japanese territory, the closest hop over the ocean would be a span of approximately 600 miles between Attu, the most westerly of the Aleutian Islands, and Shimushu, the most northerly and easterly of the islands of the Japanese empire.

ONE SHORTER ROUTE.

A shorter route of some 350 miles could be made between Attu and Copper Island, Soviet territory, and the peninsula of Kamchatka.

Two successful flights have been made by the northern route. These were the army round-the-world flight in 1924 under the command of then First Lieut. Lowell H. Smith and the Russian flyers in 1929 under command of Shemyon Shestakov.

Several plans for flight around the world and from the western hemisphere to the Orient are now pending.

POPE AGAIN DEMANDS APOLOGY

Vatican Sends Second Note to Duce; Fete Parades Are Barred; Riots Feared

Rome, June 4 (AP)—Pope Pius spent an hour and a half today discussing all phases of the crisis between the Holy See and the Italian Government with Marchese Pacelli, his secretary, who performed important work in negotiations which brought about the Lateran treaty.

It was also learned that the Pontiff had delivered a second note to the Italian foreign office, presumably a strong protest against the bill to consider violation of the concordat between Rome and the Vatican by dissolution of Catholic laymen's clubs.

This note, it was learned, was delivered on Monday or Tuesday after Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, acting on advice from Premier Mussolini, had refused to receive the first note on Friday.

REPEATS DEMAND.

That first note demanded apologies and reparations and the arrest and punishment of persons guilty

A good wind helped her off and she disappeared quickly in the haze. It was just before 1 p. m. (8 a. m. E. S. T.) when she rose from the water and get on her way.

At 5 p. m. a ship in the South Atlantic radioed that she had made a wireless contact with the DO-X, whose commander reported that everything was going well.

EVERETT MAN FOUND TO BE FOUL PLAY VICTIM

Daniel W. R. Murdock of Everett, banker, and treasurer of the Democratic state committee, who was found dead in the Hotel Commodore, New York, yesterday, may have been murdered, an autopsy indicated today.

The post-mortem examination revealed that death resulted from a fractured skull.

Bruises on the knuckles indicated that Murdock may have sought to protect himself against an assailant.

There was a hemmorrhage at the base of the brain and cuts over the left eye, upper lip and on the nose.

New York police began an immediate investigation that was speede by telegraphic request of Gov. Ely, close friend of the victim, that a full inquiry be made.

Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, New York medical examiner, said the skull fracture and other injuries might have resulted from either a beating or a fall. The knuckle bruises might have been sustained in a fight.

He ordered the banker's brain sent to the city toxicologist for examination. The body will be brought home tonight for burial in Everett.

Gov. Ely said he had communicated with Medical Examiner Gonzales and requested that the autopsy be speeded, at the request of the family of the banker.

Murdock's wife, at the home, 38 Pleasant st., Everett, was prostrated by developments. The banker is survived by 10 children.

FAMILY UNCONVINCED

In the fac of developments the family remained convinced that Murdock was not the victim of foul play. A brother said the fractured skull could be accounted for by a fall in a New York restaurant.

Murdock went to New York Monday, accompanied by Oliver G. Kelly of Manomet st., Newton, a director in the Everett National Bank.

QUARREL REVEALED IN MYSTERIOUS LAKE DROWNING

AIRPLANE WILL HUNT FOR BODY OF ARRIGONI

His Father Indignant at Suggestion That Son Committed Suicide

Laconia, N. H., June 4—Chelso Arrigoni, former Connecticut State senator, met death on a boat ride following an argument, it was charged today by Winthrop Wadleigh, assistant attorney general.

Sheriff Fred Elliot joined the state prosecutor in the charge, but tempered it with his belief that Arrigoni was not involved directly in the argument.

Arrigoni disappeared during a ride on Lake Winnepesaukee after a visit to the camp of Jack Delaney, light-heavyweight boxing champion.

Wadleigh disclosed that he had talked with Gardner K. Greene, former Harvard baseball star, in addition to Mr. and Mrs. George Billings and Miss Catherine Hance of Red Bank, N. J., all of whom were visitors at Delaney's camp. He would not say who told about the argument.

While more witnesses were called today, a new effort was made to recover Arrigoni's body by dragging.

REWARD IS INCREASED.

He was speeded by an increase from $300 to $1000 in the reward offered by Arrigoni's father for recovery of the body. Two divers were brought from New York by the father when he arrived last night.

A search by air was planned by officials and Arrigoni's father. They arranged with Lieut. Robert Fogg of the Concord airport to make a trip over the lake in hopes the body might be sighted if the water was not too deep.

A theory that Arrigoni met death as a suicide was scouted indignantly by the father last night.

Arrigoni was a partner of his father's in a road construction business and drew an annual salary of $15,000, the elder man said.

Delaney, to a Boston Evening American reporter today, denied any argument had ensued at his camp prior to the boat trip that meant death to Arrigoni.

He said he met Arrigoni and Miss Hance for the first time and had only met Billings twice previously.

HEARD NO QUARREL.

"The last I saw of Mr. Arrigoni was when he was in Mr. Billings' speed boat," Delaney said.

"Everything seemed all right then.

"I honestly do not know what happened to him. The group had been at my home for a spaghetti dinner. There was no liquor there."

Representatives of three insurance companies joined the investigators today.

Cummings declared he is going to request that Mrs. Blankenburg be not taken from the Charles at jail until after he asks for a writ of habeas corpus in U. S. Court to obtain her release.

MAN IS SAVED IN RIVER PLUNGE

The screams of a pretty girl resulted in the thrilling rescue of a drowning man at Meridian st. bridge in Chelsea today.

The police claim that Sarkes Morian, 32, of Chelsea, jumped from the bridge while on his way to work at the Highland shoe factory.

Morian's niece, who works in the same factory, was crossing the bridge some distance behind her uncle when she saw him climb over the rail and jump into the water.

"He's my uncle. Save him," shrieked the girl.

Dighan Der Galabedian of 149 Poplar st., Chelsea, a strapping youth of 20, fellow workmate of the drowning man, leaped into the water and managed to hold the struggling Morian until the drawtender pulled both into a rowboat. Dergalabedian was cheered by pedestrians.

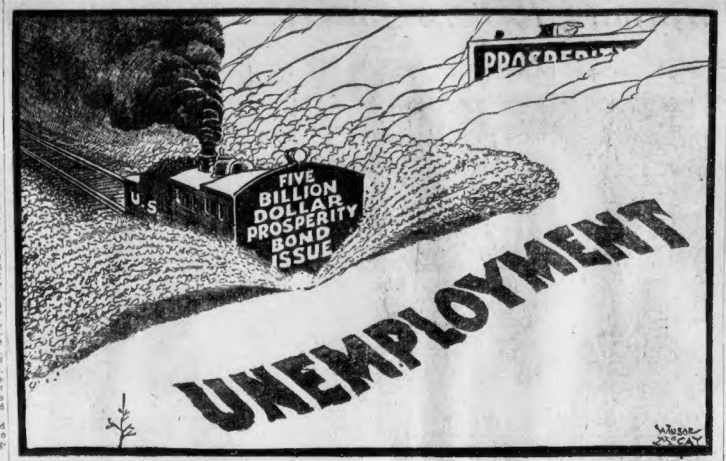
Clear the Track



Prosperity would be restored promptly if the government were to spend FIVE BILLION DOLLARS in the employment of labor, William Randolph Hearst told the nation over the radio.

He said in part:

"It is time to increase the national debt and increase the expenditure of the government in public works in the employment of labor and thereby increase prosperity.

"A gigantic appropriation by the government, NOT A DOLE, but for the employment of a vast amount of labor at the PREVAILING RATE of PROSPERITY WAGES, would not only stabilize wages, but would immediately set the machinery in motion for the restoration of prosperity; provided, of course, that the government EXPENDED the appropriation and did not set on it perpetually like a defeated hen on a porcelain doorknob."

LEADERS HERE LAUD HEARST PROPOSAL

Unemployment Relief Plan He Suggested Is Constructive and Timely, They Agree

Public officials and men prominent in Boston commerce and in public welfare work today endorsed the suggestions to President Hoover for the relief of the unemployment and economic situation as given in William Randolph Hearst's radio talk Tuesday night.

The keynote of expressions of many is that Mr. Hearst's suggested program for relief is "constructive and timely."

Here are some of the expressions of prominent personages on Mr. Hearst's broadcast:

Gov. Joseph B. Ely—I'm in accord with the principle of public standing advocated by Mr. Hearst in his broadcast. If carried out on a sufficiently large scale, it should revive prosperity.

Acting Mayor Joseph McGrath—I am most heartily in favor of Mr. Hearst's suggestion in regard to the United States Government appropriating $5,000,000,000 for public works to relieve the unemployment situation.

Mr. Hearst comes to the front again as a patriotic American, who has the best interests of his fellow citizens at heart. He shows the federal government the surest and best way of providing employment for our hundreds of thousands of jobless men and women.

His suggestion is a most constructive one and ought to be given the immediate attention of the men who direct the destinies of this nation.

Carl Dreyfus, director of the Boston Chamber of Commerce—Those who heard Mr. Hearst's radio talk, or read his statements regarding it, must have been impressed with the breadth of his views on the way out of the present depression.

Of course, the sooner the unemployed can get to work the better it will be for everyone. Obviously, the quickest way will be through some governmental or national plan.

Mr. Hearst's suggestions to President Hoover, therefore, are important and timely.

Congressman John J. Douglass of East Boston—I studied the broadcast by Mr. Hearst very carefully and approve of it heartily. I think Mr. Hearst, who is a very great student of public affairs, as well as a great editor, has hit the nail on the head.

It is evident that all other measures looking toward relief for the economic distress have failed and something gigantic has got to be done to relieve a gigantic situation. That seems to be the policy advanced by Mr. Hearst—a building program by the government to the extent he speaks of. A program along the lines that Mr. Hearst suggests has at last become feasible. The entire Congress should support a measure along these lines.

Congressman John W. McCormick—I consider Mr. Hearst's utterances constructive and timely. I particularly consider his utterances with reference to the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment as a means of reducing the cost of government and as a means of employment are absolutely correct.

I am a strong advocate of the shorter working week as a means of reducing the evils which flow from the substitution of machinery for human labor.

San Francisco Leaders Back Prosperity Plan

(Universal Service)

San Francisco, June 4—Leaders in finance, politics and labor throughout the bay district declared today they were reviewed Secretary of the Navy Adams, army and navy officers, and federal and city officials.

Following are a few typical comments on the proposal:

Mayor Angelo J. Rossi of San Francisco—The stimulus of such a federal public improvement program as proposed by Mr. Hearst would undoubtedly have a far-reaching effect in speeding up our economic machinery. The creation of payrolls would be felt in every phase of our business life.

Congressman Richard J. Welch of San Francisco—Mr. Hearst's proposal that the federal government embark upon a $5,000,000,000 program of public improvement won my approval without exception. Restore the ability to buy goods by providing payrolls and confidence and riches stored prosperity will follow.

David Aiken, San Francisco importer and economist, author of "Measurement of Economic Values" and "Economics of Freedom"—Mr. Hearst's proposal to convert idle men and surplus goods into community values by means of federal bond issue, has the approval of all economic classes. Values must be stepped up, not stepped down, if the nation is to emerge from the current depression without grave consequences.

HUSSEIN, ARAB EX-KING, DIES

Jerusalem, June 4 (AP)—Former King Hussein of the Hedjaz died at dawn today in Amman, Trans-Jordania, after a long illness.

Three of his sons were at the bedside. Another, King Feisal of Irak, was unable to come here from Bagdad. The funeral cortege left shortly after Hussein's death for this city, where burial will take place.

Hussein was born in Constantinople in 1856, the son of one of the noblest families in Arabia. Taken to Mecca at the age of eight, he spent his early manhood in assisting his uncle, Sherif Abdulla, in managing the Hedjaz tribesmen.

Later he led a revolt against his uncle's successor and was banished to Constantinople, where he became a member of the imperial Ottoman Council. In 1908 he was appointed sherif of Hedjaz and became King some years later. His father to found an Arab federation, led to his abdication in October, 1924.

COL. HOUSE OUT FOR ROOSEVELT

Manchester, June 4 (AP)—Col. Edward M. House, political adviser to President Wilson during the greater part of his administration, today declared his preference for Franklin D. Roosevelt as the Democratic party's next Presidential candidate.

House, who arrived here recently for his 38th summer on the North Shore, described Roosevelt as "the most available candidate."

"If nominated, he'd be elected," the Colonel said.

House said he also thought well of Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war under Wilson, and asserted he had the greatest admiration for former Governor Alfred E. Smith.

"I was sorry the people didn't elect Smith the last time," he said.

"I am very fond of Governor Roosevelt. We are friends of 20 years. We see a great deal of each other and I agree with him on many of the issues of the day including the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill and the need for reducing its schedules."

Official Washington Indorses Hearst's Program

By EDWARD L. RODDAN,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, June 4—Official Washington, manifesting keen interest, indorsed for the most part today the vigorous program proposed by William Randolph Hearst for the restoration of prosperity to the nation.

Even among those who found exception to his views there was a feeling that the publisher rendered a real public service in pointing to the need for decisive government aid in relieving the present economic situation.

Several prominent members of Congress gave their unqualified approval of Mr. Hearst's declaration that an enlarged public works program is the real key to business revival. These included Representatives Britten (R.) of Illinois, Cochran (D.) of Missouri and Dickstein (D.) of New York.

NO OTHER WAY OUT.

Dr. John A. Ryan of Catholic University, one of the leading economists of the country, said he saw no other way out of the depression, except as Mr. Hearst suggested.

At the White House it was learned that President Hoover was in accord with many of the proposals made by Mr. Hearst, although opposing the $5,000,000,000 outlay and any modification or change of the dry law.

The Chief Executive, however, was represented as agreeing with the publisher that the maximum amount available should be spent by the government and other agencies in public works and that the wage scale of normal prosperous times should be maintained at all costs.

LA FOLLETTE GRATIFIED.

Senator La Follette (R.) of Wisconsin, said:

"I am highly gratified to see Mr. Hearst come out in favor of a public works program."

Dr. Ryan of Catholic University said:

"I see no other way, indeed, to begin to get out of the present depression, except by a program of this kind. If we haven't distributed our output properly, as we have not, it is, of course, necessary to prepare means of making that distribution. The way to do this is to spend our surplus production in public works.

"Such a step cannot be taken with dribbles of 10 or 25 million dollars. It means the government must spend money, and real money."

WOULD START WHEELS

Representative Britten said:

"I believe Mr. Hearst has made a wonderful recommendation for improving business conditions. There is no doubt in my mind that a substantial outlay for public works would start the wheels of commerce going.

"His proposal for legalizing liquor to raise revenue goes hand in hand with the rest of the program."

Representative Cochran declared:

"Mr. Hearst has put forward a sound depression relief program. There ought to be an extra session of Congress to carry it out. The trouble is that the administration has been too slow in awarding contracts for construction of public buildings under existing law."

PATRIOTIC SERVICE

Representative Dickstein said:

"I am for Mr. Hearst's proposal 100 per cent. He has done a great patriotic service in pointing the way out of the depression. I have a suspicion that the administration is holding back on public building until nearer election time."

Representative Schafer of Wisconsin said:

"I agree with what Mr. Hearst said about having a public building program, but the money should be raised not alone by a bond issue. There should be imposed heavy taxes upon the rich to pay for the work. Mr. Hearst's suggestion about more liberality by the capitalists in their payrolls is admirable. I am also heartily in favor of Mr. Hearst's proposal for government control of the sale of liquor for beverage purposes."

DAUGHTER DEFENDS EI-RECTOR CALLAN IN CUSTODY FIGHT

CUPID GETS A DOUBLE SETBACK

Kennedy, in Blue Pajamas, Refers Questioners to His 'Secretary'

LORD INVERCLYDE LADY INVERCLYDE

JACK KIRKLAND NANCY CARROLL

One of the latest arrivals in Reno's divorce colony is Lady June Inverclyde. The beautiful blonde actress married John Alan Burns, wealthy British ship official, in 1929. Her six-weeks residence will soon be established in Reno. Then the "divorce scissors" will do its work. It was on the seventh anniversary of their wedding that Nancy Carroll, red-headed movie star, opened up divorce proceedings in Sonora, Mexico. Her husband, Jack Kirkland, and Nancy are now in New York.

TAKES DAY OFF FROM HIS $14 A WEEK JOB

Lottery Ticket Winner's Only Worry Today Is That He Has Not Heard From His Family

"My secretary will tell you anything you want to know. He's my official spokesman."

So Joseph Kennedy, West Indian Negro, who yesterday won $154,000 in the Derby Sweepstakes, greeted the press at noon today.

He had transferred his lodgings from Camden st. to Tremont st., South End. He lolled in an easy chair in front of a radio that was going full blast.

He wore blue pajamas and green leather slippers. He smoked a fat cigar. Newspapers telling of his fortune were scattered at his feet.

He waved his hand at Thaddeus A. Kitchener at the Square Deal & Chronicle Publishing Co.

"I'm going to do those things in a business way. That's why I've got Kitchener as a secretary."

SECRETARY, NOT MANAGER

It had previously been reported that Kitchener had been retained as Kennedy's manager, but the sweepstakes winner declared that Kitchener was secretary, not manager.

Kitchener had been responsible for an earlier statement to the press that Kennedy was sojourning "in the country," but this, it was explained, was merely a ruse to keep on the griddle any who might wish to attach themselves to the winner's retinue for financially selfish reasons.

It developed that Kennedy spent the night in a Tremont st. room pounding off a good eight hours despite yesterday's excitement.

He arose betimes and breakfasted heartily on oatmeal, angel cake, biscuits, two soft-boiled eggs, toast and coffee. He passed around the cake to callers. He still had the $1.11 which fortune found in his pockets yesterday.

GIVES FREE INTERVIEW

He did not report for work today on his $2.40-a-day job mending hoby carriages at the Morgan Memorial.

He denied indignantly that he or his secretary were demanding $100 an interview and to prove it gave one gratis.

"I want to be a good fellow," he said, "but I've been rushed to death. It's about time I got a rest."

He scoffed at the idea that he would receive offers of marriage.

"I've got the most wonderful wife in the world already," he stated. "She will stick to me until death."

STILL IN BIBLE.

Kennedy said he put his winning ticket in a Bible and the Bible in a bank vault, because of rumors that parties were plotting to get hold of it.

Patrolman Harvey Yates, colored member of the Boston police force and on vacation from regular duty, acted as bodyguard for Kennedy, whom he has known for a long time.

Plus by nature, the prize winner reiterated today that his good fortune resulted from the Lord's gratitude. That the government will take $52,000 tax on his winnings disturbed him not a bit.

LAST CENT FOR DEFENSE

"He was a wonderful husband; I'll stand by him to my last cent!" so declares Mrs. Phillip Knox Knapp, whose college-raised mate is accused of slaying Mineola, L. I., taxi driver six years ago. Mrs. Knapp formerly lived in Marblehead. (International Newsreel photo.)

CALLAN AIDED BY DAUGHTER IN COURT

Child by First Marriage Says Her "Daddy Was Never Brutal or Cruel"

Fourteen-year-old Evelyn Callan, one of twin girls by a former marriage of Rev. John J. Callan, came to the defense of her father today in Dedham court in the hearing on custody of three children by a second marriage that Mrs. Mary Hennenway Callan seeks to divorce.

Mrs. Callan's suit for divorce recently ended under advisement and today's hearing was called to determine the disposition of Desmond, 5; Mary, 3, and Christine, 2, whose mother is a niece of Bishop Lawrence.

"My Daddy was always nice to my sister and myself," Evelyn testified under questioning of Atty. John P. Feeney. "He was never brutal or cruel to us."

Previous to her testimony, Rev. Callan, former pastor of St. Andrew's Episcopal church in Wellesley, was described as "not a safe custodian of children," by Dr. William Healey, psychiatrist.

Rose Emery, nurse for the children, was another witness.

She testified to having seen Rev. Callan intoxicated and charged he said objectionable things in front of the children. She admitted she was discharged by Rev. Callan and later re-hired by Mrs. Callan.

PROSPERITY COMING BACK

Feeling confident that general business is showing signs of steady improvement, William R. Hearst, the publisher, sailed last night for a vacation in Europe. Photo shows him aboard the S. S. Europa, on which he departed from New York. He will return in September after visiting England and Germany. (I. N. R. photo.)

M'LOON MURDER LAID TO KNAPP

New York, June 4 (INS)—Efforts to connect Philip Knox Knapp, the "thrill" murderer of Hempstead, with the murder in 1928 of Hugh McLoon, former president of the Philadelphia Athletics, were made by Philadelphia police today.

A representative of the Philadelphia district attorney's office was expected to arrive in Mineola, L. I., where Knapp is imprisoned, during the day to question him.

Philadelphia authorities claim that Knapp, posing as a Federal narcotic agent, informed a city magistrate that he was in Stefano's cafe in Philadelphia at the time the ex-mascot was shot down by three men riding in an automobile, and that he, Knapp, could identify the killers.

State alienists also are to examine Knapp in a move to forestall an expected insanity defense in connection with the murder of Louis Panell, a Hempstead (L. I.) taxi driver, which he has confessed. Dist. Atty. Elvin N. Edwards of Nassau County explained that Knapp, in his confession, spoke of having suffered a fractured skull several years ago.

Knapp apparently was undecided between an insanity defense and a defense of accidental homicide.

Knut Hamsun Gives Away $23,000 to Escape Beggars

Oslo, Norway, June 4 (INS)—Knut Hamsun, author and Nobel prize winner, will not write any more books.

Since winning the prize he has been hounded by begging letters from all parts of the world.

So he has given $15,000 to children's homes and $8000 to the Norwegian Authors' Association. He kept enough to live on, he said.

MALDEN WOMAN IN RENO SUIT

Suit for divorce, charging extreme cruelty, was filed today at Reno by Mrs. Florence B. Coggan Kiely of Malden against Edmund B. Kiely, official of the General Electric Lamp Works at Lynn.

Mrs. Kiely, only daughter of the late Mayor Marcellus B. Coggan and Mrs. Coggan, was married at an elaborate home wedding to Kiely, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, April 2, 1929.

It was Kiely's second marriage and Mrs. Kiely's first. She is a graduate of Emerson College and the sister of Linus B. Coggan, prominent Boston attorney.

Following their marriage, the couple left on a six-week motor trip to the Pacific coast. Upon their return, Mrs. Kiely came to live with her parents at 363 Fellsway East, Malden.

BUSINESS GAINS SEEN BY HEARST

New York, June 4 (US)—Asserting that a definite trend toward business recovery has set in, William Randolph Hearst sailed last night on the Europa for a vacation in England and Germany. He will return in September.

The most hopeful sign of improved conditions, Mr. Hearst said, is in recent government reports showing less unemployment. The stock market, he declared, is no criterion of fundamental economic conditions.

He added:

"I feel reasonably confident that general business and industry will be improved by the fall. But I believe the government should assist. President Hoover has said what can be done and indicated how it can be done. Now is the time to do it."

Mr. Hearst said he had received "many enthusiastic responses" to his radio address of Tuesday night, in which he urged the government to borrow $5,000,000,000 for immediate expenditure on a great program of public works.

Senator Lewis Indorses Hearst's Relief Plan

(Universal Service.)

Chicago, June 4—William Randolph Hearst's plan for relief of the nation's economic troubles was received with approbation today by leaders in Chicago and civic business life.

United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis expressed his whole-hearted approval of the plan and declared that he would like to see it put into execution at once. He said:

"Mr. Hearst's position is thoroughly approved by me. When he first suggested his plan to me three months ago, I then proposed that the necessary funds for the employment of labor in government construction work, be obtained from the issuance of the necessary amount of greenbacks based upon the excess gold we now have in the treasury.

"Evidently, Mr. Hearst thought that because so much of this gold might be required to be returned to foreign countries either because it had been merely shifted here for us to hold, or because of loans that it would be wiser to issue bonds for the loans."

60-Foot Coastal Road Project Is Adopted

Norfolk, June 4—A resolution, urging the federal government in co-operation with cities of the Atlantic seaboard to build a 60-foot coastal highway on a 100-foot right of way from Maine to the Florida Keys, has been adopted by the Atlantic Coastal Highway Assn.

TWINS AID DADDY IN COURT FIGHT

Twin daughters of Rev. John J. Callan who came to his defense at custody hearing in Dedham court today. They are children by the former Wellesley clergyman's first marriage. They are shown here with their father. In the group are Evelyn, Rev. Callan and Isabel. Decision in a divorce suit against Callan is now pending in court. The custody case involves three children by his second marriage. On the stand today Evelyn denied her daddy had ever been "cruel or brutal" to her. (Staff photo.)

LOVE OF NANCY JUST VANISHED

Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, June 4 (AP)—The romance of Nancy Carroll and Jack Kirkland, which blossomed under the lights of New York's Broadway ended on a mutual suit for divorce.

In New York Kirkland, a playwright, said the romance, which for the little red-head was the beginning of a career that carried her to film stardom, "just went out the window."

"To his mind the end is only a "realization that to continue being happy we must respect each other's independence," the actress was quoted as telling friends their careers were more necessary now than marriage.

No accusation appeared in the decree action, the grounds being mutual consent.

When they met back in 1924, Miss Carroll was in the chorus of a musical show at $35 a week and Kirkland was reported receiving a salary of $250 weekly. As a film star her salary is reported to be $5000 a week.

She turned to motion pictures with Kirkland as her press agent and husband. Her success followed unexpected selection for the leading role in "Burlesque" when Barbara Stanwyck was unable to play it. The couple have a daughter, Patricia, five.

DERBY TICKET THEFT FOILED

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 4 (AP)—Police reported today that an attempt was made last night to rob the bank in which is deposited the winning ticket on the Army & Navy Sweepstakes of the Epsom Downs Derby, owned by Walter Sharpe. The ticket drew the horse Gossamer and Sharpe will win $17,401.

Sharpe insured the ticket for $100,000 when he deposited it in the bank.

W. J. Williamson, who lives near the bank, told police he saw three men cutting the glass from a window in the rear of the building. He said he attacked one of them and that the trio fled.

Your Weight Is Big Problem or Maybe a Little One

Washington, June 4 (AP)—America takes its weight seriously.

Evidence of [illegible] is a paper prepared for delivery today before the 24th annual national conference on weights and measures by William O. Williams, sealer of weights and measures of Trumbull County, Ohio.

"Penny-in-the-slot weighing scales are no longer a great American joke," he said. "When people pay even one cent for correct weight and fail to get it they protest to the weights and measures official and air their grievances in the newspapers."

Williams attributed a growing weight-consciousness to health campaigns of insurance companies and life extension institutions and to a new system of combating ills by preventative rather than by curative methods.

Windham, Vt., June 4 (AP)—Fire Warden Robert J. Stowell today acted to extinguish a fire which has burned in a huge pile of sawdust for two years. The pile is 15 feet high and covers an area of several square rods.

Warden Stowell has excavated a crater-like hole on top of the pile and intends to run a pipe line to it and allow water to seep down through the sawdust. His action was taken as a precaution against forest fires.

of insulting the Pope. The second note, it is believed, repeated those demands.

The Marchese Pacelli, brother of the papal secretary of state, is said to have been participating with Cardinal Gasparri, signer of the Lateran treaty, in informal negotiations looking toward a settlement of the dispute between the church and the state.

These negotiations, it was reported today, are "proceeding satisfactorily."

In Italy's 20,000 Catholic churches and in the meeting places of 9000 Fascist groups the "mass in the street" today heard the latest official pronouncements of the Vatican and Italian government in the present conflict.

Pope Pius, unbending in his contention that the government has violated the concordat, forbade the colorful religious demonstrations which usually mark this Corpus Christi day.

The processions, which usually take place outside the churches, were held inside their walls and the priests explained to their congregations why the Pope had altered the custom.

RIOTERS ARE FEARED

They said the Pope had no guarantee that the proceedings would be free from disturbance by those persons who participated in recent anti-Catholic riots.

A quarter of a century ago, during the Masonic troubles, the police forbade some processions but permitted them in many places. Today there were no exceptions.

Chief among these festivities was "Infiorata" at Genzano, outside of Rome, where every two or three years processions go from the church through the streets and back to the church on a flowery path made by thousands placing fresh petals on the ground in elaborate designs. Another was a picturesque ceremony which took place between St. Peter's and the statue of the Immaculate Conception.

All the worshippers were given copies of the Pope's speech on Sunday, in which he placed the full authority of the church behind the Catholic action organization and told its leaders, "We are with you throughout the centuries."

Premier Mussolini transmitted his orders through a resolution adopted by the directorate of the Fascist party yesterday, adjuring all Fascists to defend the party's achievements against all anti-Fascists, "under whatever banner."

Dr. Roderick Perry, patron of arts and one of the city's benefactors, and his son, Roderick Perry, Jr., will share a $200,000 inheritance under the terms of the will of Mrs. Linda Marquard Perry, wife of the doctor. The will, filed in the probate court today, was allowed. Father and son will also inherit one-sixth of the estate of the late Henry G. Marquard of New York, president of the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts, in which estate Mrs. Perry had a life interest.

Report Coolidge Tires of Writing

New York, June 4 (AP)—Calvin Coolidge is said to be getting tired of writing a daily piece for the papers.

An official of the syndicate which distributes the former President's articles is going to Northampton tonight to talk the vacation question over with him. An announcement of their decision is expected Saturday.

It has been reported that Mr. Coolidge prefers to cease his newspaper work entirely. That question, too, will be discussed, it is understood.

DEATH MYSTERY VICTIM AND MEMBERS OF HIS FAMILY

Daniel W. Murdock of Everett, victim of New York death mystery, and his family of seven girls and three boys. This photo was taken some time ago. It is believed Murdock was slain. An autopsy showed he had died of a fractured skull. His body was found in a hotel room. It was slumped down in front of a telephone. Those in the photo are, left to right, Daniel, Jr., 17; John, 19; Charlotte, 5; Gertrude, 19; Anne, 8; Katherine, 21; Susan, 22 Grace, 16; Mrs. Murdock, Mr. Murdock, Mary, 14, and Stephen, 12. MURDOCK WAS SLAIN of which Murdock was vice-president.

Kelly was bound on a business trip through the South, and Murdock intended to spend a week vacationing in New York, according to Howard F. Sweetser, cashier of the Everett Bank.

Sweetser is the son of Gen. Leroy Sweetser, president of the bank and State Commissioner of Labor and Industry. Gen. Sweetser sailed recently from New York to Paris, where he will deliver a Fourth of July address. Everett police reported that Murdock and Kelly went to New York to tell him bon voyage.

PARTED TUESDAY

This was not so according to Gen. Sweetser's son, who made reservations by telephone at the Hotel Commodore for Murdock.

Kelly checked out of the Commodore late Tuesday night and caught a train for Johnson City, Tenn. He was reached there by telephone, informed of Murdock's death, and is on his way home. He and Murdock traveled together a great deal, both having offices and many friends in New York.

Murdock was found dead in his room yesterday, slumped in a chair beside a telephone table. The receiver of the phone was off the hook and it was at first assumed that he had collapsed while making a call.

In the room were found aromatic spirits of ammonia, an ice bag and a bottle of medicine for treating black eyes.

MYSTERY CALL

A hotel physician expressed the belief that the banker had died from a heart attack, but an assistant medical examiner found discoloration of the flesh that indicated otherwise.

Dr. Gonzales said he received telephone requests from a person representing himself as a member of Murdock's family asking that no autopsy be performed.

Murdock was 49 years old. Besides being prominent in Democratic politics and vice-president of the Everett bank, he was diector of the Broadway National Bank of Chelsea and a trustee of the County Savings Bank.

He was formerly engaged in radio manufacture.

He held membership in the Everett Lodge of Elks and in the Knights of Columbus and was one of the most respected citizens in the community.

PLACE OF ATTACK

His body was claimed in New York by Stephan W. Barrett, a nephew.

New York police proceeded no the theory that the banker may have been attacked outside the hotel or even by someone who entered his room yesterday morning.

The presence of medicines in his room might be explained if he suffered a fall and was treating his own injuries, not realizing that he had a fractured skull.

The knuckle bruises, police pointed out, were not consistent with a fall, however.

Howard Sweetser said he believed the banker died of natural causes.

NO ENEMIES, HE SAYS

"Mr. Murdock and Oliver G. Kelly, a director in the bank, went to New York together Monday night," he said.

"I made reservations for Mr. Murdock at the Commodore by telephone. He intended to stay in New York for about a week's vacation. He had many friends there.

"Mr. Kelly intended to go to Tennessee Tuesday.

"Murdock appeared to be in the best of health. He had no enemies. His death is a terrible shock."

A daughter of the banker recalled that her father had been treated by a dentist for an ulcerated tooth and that the marks on his face might have resulted from the tooth.

Dr. Frank T. Murray, Everett dentist, said:

ABCESS POSSIBLE

"Mr. Murdock consulted me in my office before he went to New York. A diagnosis of acute alveolar abscess was made and I advised Mr. Murdock not to go to New York before accepting medical treatment.

"It is probable that the discoloration of Mr. Murdock's face and eye discovered by the medical examiner was due to the abcess."

MAYORS LOSE ON WINE PIPE LINE

Rheims, France, June 4—Feasting to embarrass the American mayor's touring France, officials of Rheims today cancelled plans for a luncheon to have been held in a wine cellar.

The affair was held instead in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce.

Original plans called for luncheon in a champagne cellar, where faucets were to have been placed beside each napkin.

The faucets were to be connected with pipelines, running to barrels, so the mayors could turn on the champagne to suit their own individual taste.

The mayors today stepped out of the sunshine into the damp cellars of Pommery, Mumm and Heidsieck to tramp through the long lanes of vats and bottles.

Silvester Andriano, president of the board of supervisors of San Francisco, raised a glass of champagne and drank "to the return of light wines and beers to America," expressing the hope that his country some day will once more be using the liquid products of France.

TELLER JAILED IN BANK THEFT

Athol, June 4—Theodore Newton, 26 year-old father of three children, bank teller and trap drummer, was held in bonds of $10,000 for the grand jury today in District Court charged with larceny of $6000 from the Athol National Bank.

Meanwhile, Department of Justice agents and Assistant U. S. Atty. John J. Wash, Jr., at Boston, started an investigation into the bank shortage.

Newton was arrested last night after he is alleged to have confessed to a fake holdup story to cover the shortage at the bank. The Boston federal agents entered the case because of the bank's status as a federal institution.

Newton was jailed in default of bail set by Special Justice William S. Duncan when he found probable cause. The grand jury sits at Worcester in August.

Police said that Newton in an alleged confession to the shortage said that no women nor stock transactions were accountable for the loss.

"It just went, that's all," they quoted him.

HARRIMAN WILL BATTLE ON

Newport, R. I., June 4—Charging mental incapacity and illegal domicile, Mrs. Katherine M. Harris of New York will reopen her fight in Superior Court to break the $1,000,000 will of her sister, Mrs. Mary Brady Harriman, in whose estate she has but a small share.

Contest of the will filed and admitted for probate in the probate court last week was filed in Superior Court today by Mrs. Harris, nurses her sister was not a resident of Newport, but of New York, and was unable to make a will.

Under the will two sisters, Misses Natalie and May Lanthier, friends of Mrs. Harriman, share the bulk of the estate.

Ten freight cars were derailed, but no one was hurt.

CHURCH TO ACT ON MARRIAGE, DIVORCE

London, June 4 (AP)—The importance of a definite lead by the church on the question of carriage and divorce was emphasized today by the Archbishop of Canterbury at the convocation of the Upper House of Canterbury.

The meeting adopted a resolution requesting the archbishop to appoint a joint committee of both houses to consider the bearing of last year's Lambeth conference resolution upon the practice of the church in this province and to confer with any similar committee to be appointed by the convocation of York.

"I am convinced," said the archbishop, "that we can no longer drift in this matter of marriage and fidelity to our own principles and our relati- to the law of the state without grave peril. The time has come, and more than come, when such an inquiry as is proposed should take place."

One of the summer musical revues had progressed to the dress rehearsal stage. In one scene a beauty, adorned only with a wisp of silken material and a beautiful necklace, emerged from beneath the stage on a richly decorated circular platform.

As the chorus grouped themselves around her and the orchestra played softly, the figure on the platform reached, as if to remove the silken cloth that so scantily protected her. But instead, she removed her necklace. A waggish stagehand who was standing nearby flipped, "Aw, say, consider your Adam's apple, willya?"

PINCHOT HUNTS VOTES TO BEAT HOOVER

French Lick, Ind., June 4 (INS)—The annual conference of state governors, which broke up today, served to put the perpetual candidacies of three men in bold relief against the 1932 political picture.

For the Democratic nomination next year, both Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland made politically important contacts with their fellow governors, who are likely to be influential in their respective state delegations, and both governors furnished further insight into their developing campaigns.

On the Republican side, Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania left little doubt that he is to be considered a rival for the nomination which most politicians, irrespective of party, believe President Hoover cannot be denied. Nevertheless and with his usual disdain of odds, the Pennsylvanian threw his hat into the ring on the power issue, and there it is likely to remain until further developments.

Governor Pinchot's friends are already actively in quest of anti-Hoover delegates to the convention next year in a dozen states.

DEATH TAKES 'MILLIONAIRE REPORTER'

Los Angeles, June 4 (AP)—A life of adventure and romance leading halfway around the world at the price of forfeiture of a $25,000,000 fortune ended here today with the death of Maj. Jordan Lawrence Mott, 50, once New York's "millionaire reporter."

At his bedside was his widow, the former Francis Hewitt Bowne, once a light opera singer, for whom he forsook the fortune of his father, Jordan L. Mott, New York iron manufacturer.

Shortly after his graduation from Harvard, Mott worked as a reporter in New York. He covered his assignments in an imported limousine driven by a chauffeur.

His first marriage was an unhappy one, and during his domestic difficulties he met Mrs. Bowne, who, like himself had experienced an unfortunate marital life.

In May, 1912, they decided to elope, although neither had been divorced. They defied conventions and sailed for Europe from New York on a tramp steamer, the Indridge.

Their departure was followed by a frantic effort by Mott's father to make his son give up the romance. With unlimited financial backing Hector Fuller, a New York newspaperman, was sent in pursuit of the couple. The chase led to Hong Kong, where Mott refused to accede to entreaties, thus losing his right to his father's fortune. To earn a living he worked at odd jobs in the far corners of the world while Mrs. Bowne gave concerts.

In 1920 they returned to the United States, and were married at Merced, Cal. A year before, Mott's mother died, leaving her son $25,000.

BEER BARS THROWN OPEN IN BOSTON

Four "Spots" Now Operate and 12 Others Planned for Summer Trade

By THE MASKED REPORTER.

Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American. Rights Reserved.

More trouble is in sight for the powers who guide the destinies of the rackets in Boston. The beer racket, which brought ruthless savagery to Chicago, and within the past week has caused a number of killings in New York, has come to Boston, I have learned.

While two big gangs have been fighting for the domination of the local rum-running industry, a Philadelphia mob which I have previously referred to, has stepped in and organized the beer racket.

For the first time since prohibition went into effect, real draught beer is obtainable in Boston, and before the summer is well under way it will be sold in 15 spots, according to present plans.

The beer mob is well provided with money and armament, and is prepared to protect its racket against any attempts to "muscle in."

The beer comes over the road from Philadelphia in heavily guarded, armored trucks, the cabs having non-shatterable glass in windows and windshields.

AN ARMED PATROL

I am told the run is made in two nights, the trucks laying over in New Jersey one day and completing the run to Boston the following night. They are the last word in high speed, pneumatic-tired machines.

Behind each are fast autos carrying guards armed with sub-caliber machine guns and shotguns, grimly prepared to use them, particularly in view of many recent hijackings.

At the present time the beer is shipped in barrels which are unloaded into the joints, but plans are under way to install the underground tank system which has been used successfully in New Jersey.

Tanks or vats similar to those used for fuel oil will be built in the rear of the speakeasies handling the beer, and reserve supplies will be emptied into them through outside pipe connections.

The beer will then be pumped up into local reservoirs, to be drawn off through regular spigots and served with foaming collars to thirsty customers.

FOUR BEER SPOTS OPEN

Two places are handling it in South Boston, and two more in the city proper.

At least eleven more choice spots will be decided on in the near future unless present plans are changed. The mob figures that 15 places will handle enough beer during the summer to net them a tidy stake after all the overhead has been taken care of. And there is plenty of overhead.

A short time ago I revealed how the mob was in handling the beer racket had stepped into South Boston and appropriated a rum landing place near the foot of K st. I told how bullets spattered against their armored trucks when hijackers attempted to take them and how when the police arrived on the scene they found no one there. I also told how this Philadelphia gang was allied with Owney Madden, "Big Jack" New York racketeer, and how they were handling dope also.

Now they are firmly established in the beer racket, which brought five deaths this week in the Bronx and has caused ruthless slaughter in Chicago.

What action, if any, will be taken by the local organizations with regard to the beer racket, is a question.

Thus far they have done nothing. They have always preferred to handle only hard liquor and were not interested in beer. However, if it turns out to be "in the dough" they may decide to take steps.

Also there are the hijackers, who are constantly growing in numbers and boldness, since the advent here of former hirelings of Al Capone in Chicago.

HIJACKING CITED

Which reminds me that no decision has yet been made by the authorities in connection with the bunch of alleged hijackers discovered outside the Coleman disposal plant at Dorchester Bay when federal agents grabbed "Big John" Magnus together with 23 men, a lot of liquor, boats and armament.

It will be remembered I revealed that when the federal officers appeared, according to their reports, Patrolman Carl Miner of Station 11 was standing beside the hijacking car with a gun covering him. This car, I am told, was driven by a man well known to the police as "Smuggles." Despite the fact that he was well known, and that there were guns in the car, neither he nor his companions were arrested. As far as I can learn they haven't been arrested yet.

Furthermore I am told the authorities haven't made up their minds as to whether or not the men were hijackers. Possibly they were a petting party.

At any rate the hijackers are causing the rum-runners a lot of annoyance, and as I revealed yesterday, one outfit is liable to pay for its temerity in lifting liquor by acting as targets for machine guns.

This is the crowd which took two loads on the Cape from Chicago men said to have been in the employ of Capone, and hid it near Rockland. It is still there because the former owners are watching for it to come out so they can start shooting. I understand desperate efforts are being made to get rid of it. At first it was planned to unload the stuff on some dealer outside of Boston. Now I am told the hijackers are trying to slip it out a few bottles at a time. They may find it necessary to destroy the whole thing in order to save their lives.

Further revelations will be made by the Masked Reporter tomorrow.

the smoothest Eight in its price class

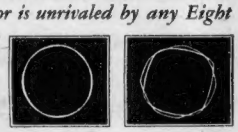
Scientific Torsiographic tests prove the "rounded" performance of The Dictator is unrivaled by any Eight in its price class . . . . . .



THE Dictator Eight has what engineers know as a "sweet" engine—an engine free from perceptible vibration periods. Linked with Free Wheeling, this vibrationless power results in motoring of new smoothness—new restfulness.

Motor roar is hushed by improved muffling, which conserves horsepower, and by carburetor silencing, introduced by Studebaker.

At no point in the whole sparkling speed range, is there a "rough spot" to mar The Dictator's "rounded" performance. The Dictator has a nine-bearing crankshaft, balanced not only statically, but dynamically. What remains of vibration is further minimized by a crankshaft vibration damper. Dual carburetion and manifolding feed equal amounts of fuel to each cylinder, avoiding the common fault of "starving" the end cylinders, and assuring even power impulses.

With Free Wheeling you enjoy relaxed motoring. Clutch-pushing is almost forgotten. Gear-shifting is effortless and quiet. Added safety is certified by scores of public traffic authorities. You save 15% to 20% on gasoline and oil. Your car will last longer, and cost less to maintain.

Drive The Dictator Eight after you've driven the others. The contrast will sell you!

"Rounded" Performance

The Torsiograph, one of the most nearly infallible of automotive laboratory instruments, records accurately the vibration of any rotating shaft. The closer the record chart approaches a true circle, the more nearly perfect the balance of the crankshaft. Above are shown the Torsiographic records of The Dictator Eight nine (9) bearing crankshaft and those of two other eights of double The Dictator's price. Notice the smooth roundness of The Dictator graph contrasted with the irregularity, or "humpiness" of the other two.

MONEY COUNTS IN LOVE FOR PEGGY

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Said a blonde to a brunette:

"You're wrong, Edna, woman's friend is independence — not man!"

And Edna Hibbard laughed. She laughed out loud.

To think that her friend and "pal," Peggy Hopkins Joyce, the much-front-paged heroine of so many romances, international and royal, had arrived at this conclusion after three marriages, well—

"But, Peggy, doesn't love count for anything?" Miss Hibbard, star of several stage successes, now appearing at the Wilbur Theater, queried.

MUST HAVE FREEDOM

And now it was time for beautiful and blonde Peggy to laugh.

The two stage stars were enjoying a friendly discussion of men, marriage and love in Miss Joyce's dressing-room at the Keith-Boston Theater, where she is appearing in a playlet.

"Love, Edna?" Peggy replied. "It's beautiful, of course, it is. But a woman doesn't stay in love with a man who can't set her up in fashion and comfort. Very little love remains when there is no money for the bread and butter. Mind you, Edna, I'm not mercenary.

"Woman shouldn't marry for money exclusively, but financial standing is of major importance when the woman is making up her mind to walk the carpeted aisle. If a woman has independence, financial and otherwise, she will always be happy."

ON STAGE TOGETHER

Miss Hibbard was giving a five-minute perusal of the part she was to play in Miss Joyce's skit for the matinee performance. It was a lark and an idea, that. The two have had for years, to play in some stage vehicle together. When they discovered that they both "played" Boston the same week, the idea was put into effect, and yesterday's matinee they cued each other on lines concerning woman's psychology of the male.

That's how the discussion continued into Miss Joyce's dressing-room.

Lithe of figure, gorgeous of face, and charming, Miss Joyce still retains that indefinable something that has singled her out as top-notcher of the much-desired feminine "it."

"Give me a woman who can live her own life with or without men, and I'm for her," Miss Joyce continued. "She can hold her head high and, believe me, when she wants a man, she gets him."

"Yes, I suppose you ought to know, Peggy. Gentlemen do prefer blondes," Miss Hibbard retaliated.

"But you've been preferred, too, Edna, you're married."

And so in Miss Joyce—

So there you are.

MEN ON THEIR MINDS

Actress Edna Hibbard and Peggy Joyce had an enlightening little chat when they staged a reunion in Peggy's dressing room at the Keith-Boston Theater. The subject of the chat being men in general and husbands in particular, Peggy contributed some expert testimony.

BYRD IS BUSY WITH PEN

More than 1000 men, women and children jammed the book department of Jordan Marsh Company yesterday to snatch a glimpse of Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd, conqueror of the North and South polar regions.

For more than an hour Byrd sat behind a little table at the book counter autographing copies of his latest book.

It was announced at the outset that he would autograph no books except those purchased yesterday. He was forced to break this announcement when a 14-year-old youngster clambered to the counter at Byrd's side and declared he had come all the way from Providence to have the Antarctic explorer autograph the book he carried with him, purchased months ago.

Soviet "Non-Stop" System Failure

Moscow, June 4—The Stalingrad tractor plant is the latest case where the non-stop system of work introduced two years ago has been abandoned as a contributory cause of inefficiency.

Instead of one-fifth of the workers being on duty every day, without shutting down the plant, Commissar Ordjonikidzie, chairman of the supreme economic council, ordered the factory closed every sixth day to overhaul the machines. The non-stop system has been abandoned on a much larger scale in offices which now close every fifth day instead of being open daily.

Shaw's Sarcasm Brings Cleanup

London June 4—A refuse dump near George Bernard Shaw's home is to be cleaned up by the St. Albans rural district council after a hot letter. Shaw wrote that when cruising in the Mediterranean he had been reminded of the dump by the fumes of the island volcano Stromboli, which is believed by the islanders to be a chimney of hell.

COTTON WEEK BOOMS SALES

Atlanta, June 4 (AP)—The last half of National Cotton Week began today with Cason J. Callaway of La Grange, Ga., president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, gratified by the success attained so far.

Reports from all co-operating agencies, Callaway said, indicate satisfactory results from the first three days.

T. M. Forbes, secretary of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia, announced that retail stores in this state had reported sales of cotton goods increased sometimes as much as three times the normal volume.

Callaway said every available agency, including advertising, news stories, radio, displays and other mediums had been used to the fullest advantage in telling the story of the 802 listed uses of cotton.

He said 279 cotton items, ranging from beach pajamas and frail dress goods, through toilet preparations and cooking oil to rough fabrics of tremendous strength for industrial uses had been advertised during the three days.

Neighbors Seek Ban on Snake Farm

New Orleans, June 4 (AP)—Harry Vioaca says his neighbors ought to learn about snakes.

Twenty neighbors have asked the city commission council to put a ban on snake farms. Vioaca operates one within the city limits. He raises the reptiles for educational and scientific purposes, has 40 of them, says they are non-poisonous and harmless and eat out of his hands.

Heart Attack Kills Joseph M. Farnham

Los Angeles, June 4 (AP)—Joseph W. Farnham, 47, motion picture writer and producer, died early today at his Beverly Hills home from a heart ailment.

He began his career as a writer in 1911, conducting a column for the New York Telegram under the name of Gordon Trent. During the World War he handled details of war pictures in Europe for the Carnegie Foundation, and in 1924 came to California as scenario editor and title writer.

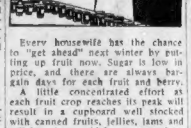
JELLIES AND JAMS MADE AT HOME ARE GOOD INVESTMENT



Every housewife has the chance to "get ahead" next winter by putting up fruit now. Sugar is low in price, and there are always bargain days for each fruit and berry. A little concentrated effort as each fruit crop reaches its peak will result in a cupboard well stocked with canned fruits, jellies, jams and relishes from which one may draw freely throughout the winter.

Since fruit belongs in the diet and should appear in some form at every meal, the economy of a home supply is readily apparent. Cane sugar is ideal for all kinds of canning. Preserve with refined cane sugar. The Sugar Institute.

PINPRICKS AND PERSONALITIES! WHO MINDS A pinprick if they have personality? Mrs. John T. Wheelwright has come back from Washington to close her house at 14 Chestnut st., now that Mrs. Lorna Lindsley has gone a-vagabonding is search of adventure.

Bachrach photo.

FRANCES PORTER

Mrs. Wheelwright will return to the Capital City later, where she is living with her mother, Mrs. Merriam, and, either from hobby or necessity, managing her sister's smart gown shop. If walls had ears and tongues, what a tale might be unfolded of the times Mrs. Lindsley and her hosts of friends had at No. 14 this winter. They were as merry as the Jiggs family and Lorna has left a trail of aching hearts behind her. Daughter Joan has gone to Stockbridge for the summer to make father Lindsley a visit.

THESE GIRLS WHO ARE PAST the heydey of their youth seem to be getting into print more often than the dashing debs. Mrs. William Stanley Parker (Betty Porter) has been elected president of the Women's City Club and the tabbies are looking at each questionably. The Porter girls are well known in Boston: Miss Mary, who lives on River st. and keeps pruning the budding blossoms on the social tree, and Miss Frances, who likewise does various and sundry social duties. At one time she was secretary to Mrs. Grandin, while Isabella was going through the throes of social birth.

Mrs. Parker Prominent in Vincent Club

MRS. PARKER IS DEARLY LOVED BY ALL WHO know her and in its infancy was at one time secretary of the Vincent Club. She still wears the high collar and little turn-over lingerie touch of the '90s with distinction, and some say the same suit she wore in the Vincent Club plays. We hope she does. In this day when women, old and young, do not seem to have a thought above a trousseau, Mrs. Parker is talented and her extemporaneous monologues are a delight. Mr. Parker is a well-known architect, almost as well known for his work at the Footlight Club as for his edifices. They are builders both, in labor and in art, and Boston is proud of them.

ADELAIDE BROWN, THE trifle buxom bride-to-be of Lewis Bell, is all of a twitter about her wedding on Saturday. We are wondering what she is going to do evenings after she and Lewis are married. For the past six years they have been holding hands in somebody-or-other's hammock, when not out on the high seas in their little skiff, much to the friendly amusement of their comrades. It is said the hostesses always invite them to their parties and then forget them, knowing that Adelaide and Lewis will find a cozy nook and be no strain on the entertainment committee. Now, they can't keep that up after the strains of Lohengrin have faded away. I know—they will probably start arguing about prohibition.

ADELAIDE'S MOTHER, MRS. WILLIAM H. BROWN is a charter member of the W. C. T. U., and daughter may be a convert, willingly or otherwise. There is a story going around that Mother Brown went to the Bell residence one evening with a pledge in one hand and a pen in the other and asked soniia wino he to sign. Much to her amazement, he refused. Foolish boy, he probably will lose half of the Moors millions for that false step. Secretly, we like his independence, not having much use for pledges and forfeits. More about the wedding later.

FIVE OF THE INTELLIGENSIA of past seasons are inviting some of the Harvard boys and some of the Harvard girls to a subscription dinner dance at the Fo'castle in Marblehead on Friday evening. It is a charmingly variegated committee, Elizabeth Scaife, tall and humorous; Marian Dalton, petite and dimpled; Barbara Welch, slim and languorous, Elizabeth Hovey, straight and athletic, and Cynthia Walters, flippant and ambitious. To ho!

ANOTHER PARTY IN MARBLEHEAD on Friday night is a paper chase by Priscilla Simonds. She can't be serious! With the advent of long skirts, floppy hats and paper chases, maybe the good old game of postoffice and spin-the-cover will be revived. The invitations read "Bring food and a man." It is easy enough to find food but from our observation men are as scarce as true love. They look like men, they talk like men but they don't act like men. This from "The Diary of An Old-Fashioned Girl." The girl takes the man; the man eats the food; he says hasty-la-hasse, the farmer's in the dell.

New Tropical Colors in Gowns

By ANN ARDEN

HAVE YOU been noticing how the tropical colorings of such far places as Morocco, Tunis and other "hot countries" are putting a new life into resort wear? Of course, the Algerian colors are a theme which you have been hearing about ever since the first pajama was glimpsed on southern sands. Yet, unless you study the current color schemes of the resort fashions, you will not realize how thoroughly this idea has been fostered.

PASTELS have held the honors so long, that the bright vivid colors register as a definite novelty. Bright yellows in corn and gold shades are increasing in importance as the season progresses. In fact yellow and orange is being smartly combined with lacquer red.

AN ALL-OVER design of small yellow flowers animates the red silk crepe frock pictured. A group of pleats mark lower skirt edge, front and back, the cap sleeves are open through the center, and the irregular neckline has never one side tied to bow repeating the frock's colors. A double belt of red and yellow ribbon, with sash ends, extends across the front only.

THE HAT is yellow visca, a bright feather gun through ribbon band; a double strand necklace of yellow beads, composition bracelet, and bag with self handle of coarse yellow linen continue the sunny effect.

BRACELETS are a charming gesture for the arm that boasts shorter sleeves. They so subtly overcome any awkwardness one may feel at so suddenly coming out at the elbows! They provide, too, a clever way to introduce a colorful contrast in the costume. Almost any sort of bracelet is good, this spring—you may wear them singly or in a colorful assortment upon either or both arms. It is well not to go to extremes.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs, or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American, or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WAAB.

THE FORMULA FOR GOOD FOOD

By Gilbert Seldes

It is humiliating to confess a total blank about the recent developments of the Einstein theory (and for that matter, the earlier ones as well); and no one who is really worried over the present economic condition of the country can have any pride in admitting a complete failure to find the way out. Fortunately human beings are so constituted that they find consolation for their own defects. In addition to the two major puzzles mentioned above, there are the difficulties of traffic in large cities and the formula for a successful play. It has not been given to me to know the answers to any of these, but I can always fall back on one thing which I do know, and that is how to get good food in restaurants.

Wait for Dinner

It is not an infallible rule because there are restaurants in which it will not work—restaurants which make it a point not to have good food. But for the general run the rule, which is simplicity itself, will always work. It is: "Never order ready dishes."

The complaint that American food is tasteless or, as a variation, that Americans care nothing about their food and have never created dishes worthy of respect, is partly nonsense. There are a hundred fine American dishes which Americans really appreciate. But the trouble is that they are swamped in millions of portions of ready-made food. It is an axiom that food that is fit to eat has been specially prepared to be ready at the time of consumption. For certain economical reasons restaurants have to have a quantity of dishes ready. There are people who do not care and people who will not wait, and for these the dishes marked * are quite adequate.

The remarkable thing is that people who pretend to care for food will go into a restaurant and timidly allow themselves to be browbeaten by whatever the menu card offers. Every ready dish on a daily card has been prepared, or partly prepared, for at least an hour. This means in practice that the real virtue of meat and vegetables has been steamed or stewed or heated or boiled out of the dish. The restaurant which begins its major service at about 12:30 is ready for customers an hour earlier, and even food which takes only a few minutes to prepare is made partly ready, and as each prepared portion is ordered another takes its place. It is unreasonable to think that a self-respecting chop or steak will not present being half-cooked and allowed to cool and then cooked again.

Millennial Meals

In paradise and in the remote future there will be no ready dishes. Meanwhile it is quite possible to get good food by turning the card race downward. Every good restaurant has a number of things not listed on the day's menu, and the wise diner comes in knowing what he wants to eat, makes sure that by accident it is not on the card, and then orders. Even in smaller restaurants all you have to do is see what fish, meats and vegetables are available and then order them in combinations different from those the chef has thought up. You will have to wait, but you will have good food.

Dr. Johnson said that people who are careless about their food are very likely to be careless about everything else. The contrary is also true. People who are pretentious about their food are just a little bit untrustworthy. It is a remarkable thing that Americans who are careless in restaurants are so high falutin in their homes. A certain number of dishes are correct for serving to guests—company dishes, in fact—and others are forbidden by the social code. In the last category are some of the best foods known to America, such as cornbeef hash, half a dozen kinds of stew, spare ribs, liver and bacon, and all the other foods, which, because they are, or were, inexpensive are considered unsuitable to offer to visitors.

It happens that 90 per cent of the cooks employed in American households are without flattery plain cooks. They haven't heard of the blue ribbon of the French chefs and there is very little reason why they should have. Six times a week they can make palatable food for a household, but the moment company is coming they are asked to create sauces and do elaborate dishes which it takes an expert to do. The result is that people who dine out a great deal are always eating the same things more or less badly done, and certainly not as well done as they are in restaurants of the first class. Yet these people would probably like nothing better than the round-steaks and spare ribs and cornbeef which in the restaurants are not made to perfection.

"Sweet and Hot"

The great advantage of dining at home is that you can really have what you want and have it hot. The fury of Americans in attacking their food has led not only to the ready dish but to lukewarm food—the idea being that the minute anything is put before you you can dig in, and if you eat fast enough you can beat the cooling process. Yet the actual process of masticating an excellent dinner consumes only about 20 minutes and the usual hour for lunch and at least that for dinner give ample time first for thinking about food, second for waiting until the food is properly prepared, and third for eating it slowly, with enough time between courses. It is true that most people have to do something else in that lunch hour, but their evenings are comparatively free and they could develop in their evenings a discrimination about food which would help them through the day.

Imported chefs occasionally complain that no matter how good their food is patrons of large restaurants and hotels never send them compliments. It is also true that no matter how bad it is the patrons seldom complain.

To Be Sung Weakly

I shan't mind Judgment Day at all
When grass resurgent quickens
And all we dead wake from our bed.
But rent day is the dickens!
Mary Carolyn Davies.

"Thank you for your adorable visit!"
"Thank you for your darling lunch!"

Off the Press

—By the Reader—

THERE are still miracles. An English novelist went to Hollywood, lived and worked there, and left saying some nice things about it.

We refer to John van Druten, author of "A Woman on Her Way," which Alfred A. Knopf recently published. Van Druten has just returned to England and London's newspapers report him as saying that he couldn't find any "wild parties" in Hollywood, but that he did find a great many hard-working and intelligent people.

Furthermore, he says that he is going back in the fall and is pleased at the prospect!

ERICH MARIA REMARQUE, author of "All Quiet" and "The Road Back," has postponed until autumn his first visit to America.

He continues to live the life of a recluse and is seldom seen at professional or society functions in Berlin. He lives in seclusion for an occasional week-end incognito in London or Paris.

Remarque was only 18 years old when he was drafted for the war in 1916. Before writing "The Road Back," he revisited the scenes of his fighting days. The only statement he would make concerning "The Road Back" is as follows:

"In this book I describe the way back to life, how a young man like myself experienced war as a youth, who still carries its scars and who was then grabbed up by the chaos of the post-war period, finally finds his way into life's harmonies."

After Sorrow

I never thought that earth or sky,
Or tree or rock or hill could change,
But when I faced them after grief
They seemed to wear an aspect strange.

Their colors were uncertain, blurred—
Now vivid and now vanishing—
As if the hedges and the woods
And every known, familiar thing

Took on some weird, fantastic form.
And, with the clouds and breezes' aid
Conspired to shelter from my eyes
Some scene behind them played.
Charlotte Becker.

Month o' May

This is what May means to me—
Lilacs on a slim park tree,
Pineapples in market places,
Sunburns tinting city faces.

This is what May means to me—
The far calling of the sea,
Pink ice cream at soda fountains,
And the lure of distant mountains.

This is what May means to me—
Freckles where they should not be;
Hair so straight I'll save each cent
Till I rate a permanent.
Margaret E. Sangster.

In Berlin

—By Bruno Lessing—

Berlin—If there is exceptionally acute poverty in Germany, as some statesmen and bankers claim, there is certainly no visible evidence of it in this city—the biggest on the continent. Berlin just reeks of prosperity. The days when you could buy a nice suitcase for 1,000,000 marks (worth about $2.50) have passed into ancient history. The kind of suitcase you want costs you around $75 today. And hotel, restaurant, taxi and laundry prices remind you of Fifth Avenue, New York.

It's a much peppier city than Paris. It has a peculiar charm for Americans and Englishmen. As a matter of fact, the latter are more popular than the former.

Only One Stomach

You hate to leave Berlin. You have the feeling that there are so many things and places that you ought to see which you haven't yet seen. To do full justice to the night life requires the constitution of an ox. The bills-of-fare in all good restaurants are the most intriguing and most exciting in all the world. One regrets that man is equipped with only one stomach.

You can get a palatable quart of Rhine or Moselle wine for $1. But if your taste craves the finest vintages, you find yourself hitting $5, $8 or even $8 financial Fahrenheit.

Those Gov't Doctors

The waiter who brought my breakfast said he used to work in Chicago and was proud of his awful English. Business was so bad in Chicago, he said, that he came back to Germany. Just now he was having a lot of trouble.

"My wife," he explained, "is going to have another baby. She had so much trouble with the last one that we are worried. She needs a first-class doctor. And that costs a lot of money."

"I thought you had medical insurance in Germany," I ventured. He shrugged his shoulders.

"Yes," he replied. "But you never know what kind of a doctor you're going to get. I guess all of them are all right if you just have a cold or indigestion. But this is a complicated case and I'm afraid that only the best kind of doctor can pull her through. She's terribly worried about it. And she knows that her worrying isn't going to do the baby any good, even if it is safely born."

Which wasn't at all nice to think about. A woman in her child-bearing period has enough to trouble her without having a persistent worry added. But there are so many more millions of women in the world than there are individual, high-class doctors. So what can one do?

"Who's That Guy?"

Had luncheon at an Anglo-American club where I heard a new story. New, at least, to me. The narrator said he heard it from the Duke of Manchester, who had heard it from his father.

The old duke took the train from London to his country estate. Two other dukes, also on their way to their country estates, were in the same compartment. A young American hopped into the compartment just before the train pulled out. The three dukes were reading their newspapers and the silence became irksome to the American. He said to one of them:

"Pretty slow train, this." The old duke laid down his paper and smiled.

"Our local trains," he said, "are not as good as those you have in America, I understand." Then they talked about the weather. The two other dukes kept reading their newspapers. Presently the train stopped and the affable duke, with a nod to his companions, got out. The station master himself had opened the door of the compartment and there were liveried flunkies hovering around. The American leaned out of the window and asked the station master:

"Who's that guy?"

"That's his Grace the Duke of Norfolk," was the answer. The American turned to the two other passengers.

"Gee!" he exclaimed. "Did you fellows get that? The Duke of Norfolk! Holy mackerel! And did ja notice how pleasant and polite he was to three ordinary slobs like us?"

RADIO SALES TALKS

Carefully Planned by Big Concerns

Time and Study Given Promotion Plugs in Broadcasts

Many dial enthusiasts show resentment at the amount of plugging contained in major radio programs. An equal number of Listening Posters squawk little about the persistent and insistent ballyhoo of manufacturers on behalf of their products. Most of the comment from ear cuppers, as it comes to this department, reveals concern over the manner of getting the commercial pill properly coated with entertainment. In other words, folks don't seem to mind promotion on the air, if it is served appetizingly.

Right there may be found the fly in radio's soup. An old business adage says that sales promotion (which is all radio programs are designed for) is exactly like paint, it should only be handled by an artist. How true! In any event, just the right degree of ad plugging is vigorously sought after by every single concern now sponsoring air periods. Naturally, none of America's big industries desire to offend.

A Few Figures . . . . . .

Here are some statistics on the subject: Twenty-five per cent of the Amos 'n' Andy bit goes for praising the product of those who foster their effort. Cremo gets in 8 per cent selling talk (despite holding to 20 words), with General Motors ratio indicating only 3.3 per cent. The latter appears to be the least pressure used by any in proportion to radio time consumed.

Novelty that is rare comes with the latest news concerning Gene Austin, who croons Saturday nights at WEAF in New York. Humanity is also a highlight not to be lost sight of in this idea formulated by Gene, affectionately known to thousands as radio's "Good Scout." Finding homes for babies, that's his plan. By special arrangement with a Gotham orphanage, one little waif will coo each week, after which listeners can arrange to see the waif and adopt it, if they so desire. Health department officials guarantee a certificate with each homeless youngster.

Has It Ever Occurred to You . . . . . .

That Ruth Etting holds the record for guest star appearances . . . that WBZA used to be in Boston . . . with WBZ at Springfield . . . now it's the other way around . . . No matter how good an extemporaneous speaker, radio demands that he hold script . . . That timing and rehearsal is one of the most important parts of any program . . . An ordinary telephone mouthpiece is practically a microphone . . . Columbia feeds chain programs to two outlets in Boston now (WNAC and WAAB) just as NBC has been doing for so long through WBZ and WEEI . . . One of those old-fashioned spelling bees, with 10 or 12 boys and girls, supervised by Boston school officials, would make a right smart feature about now . . . using "School Days" for a theme song . . . Lost and Found announcements have a wide appeal and draw lots of mail from listeners . . . Joe Lopez promoted at last, he goes to Bridgeport, Ct. (WICC)

Travelers Aid Society workers have dramatized their duties for a radio sketch. It is called "I Want to Go Home" and will be heard tomorrow afternoon at 5:15 (WEEI).

More than a score of phone calls poured in when line trouble broke off the broadcast of Dr. Frank Lee at 10:30 a. m. yesterday (WAAB). Martha was kept busy, along with the studio staff, explaining what happened and promising to carry on with her culinary counsel on Friday morning at the same time. Such popularity must be deserved.

Crooning Lou Baker has a fan letter in which was enclosed lyrics for a song dedicated to listeners, entitled "Dialing I Am Growing Old."

On the Air

A POTPOURRI of programs, including broadcasts pertaining to golf, wrestling, adventure, comedy and vocal music, is tonight's ether forecast. WAAB lists the sports and 8:00 talk broadcasts. At 6 tonight scenes of horror will be described when Capt. H. S. Wooten of the convict ship "Success" speaks before a microphone installed in the vessel. Capt. Wooten will tell of some hair-raising incidents that have occurred on this ship, which has been transporting convicts from England to Australia since 1790 . . . Gus Sonnenberg and Nick Lutze will provide plenty of grappling action for Gerry Harrison when he describes their scrap at 10 . . . The last round of the fight to determine a successor to Bobby Jones as British open golf champ will be b'cast over WAAB tomorrow at 1:35 from Carnoustie, Scotland. Bernard Darwin, British golf authority, will describe the finals, in which there are four Americans.

WILLIE and Eugene Howard, musical comedy stars, join with Rudy Vallee in a general kidding bee over WEEI at 8 this eve. And to relieve the joking and crooning, the Howards will sing . . . Patrick Henry" will call for "Liberty or Death" over WEEI at 9 tonight on the reincarnation p'gram.

Ambitions of CBS for the summer include broadcasting of six golf tournaments, five tennis matches, two air events, a polo match, four boat races, a balloon race and dance music by 19 orchestras . . . Paul Whiteman is the eternal looking arch leader in the business, which leads many people to think he's a martinet. But he isn't; Paul's a swell guy . . . Ray Perkins predicts a new wave of crooners on the air for the summer months. The "Old Topper" bases his prediction on the fact that college grads, who in the old days became bond salesmen, are now going into the crooning business.

Helen Morgan will sing "Why Was I Born" as the piece de resistance on her guest artist recital over WBZA at 9:30 tonight.—M. G. M.

Even Idiots Are Brilliant!

The Amazing Intellectual Qualities Often Exhibited by Lunatics with "One-Track Minds" Is Almost Beyond Belief

CAN you multiply 287 by 341 in your mind in ten seconds—and get the right answer? . . . Few people can! And fewer could extract mentally, in thirteen seconds, the cube root of the number 465,484,375 . . . Yet these are only two of the amazing arithmetical stunts of a patient in a French asylum who was completely idiotic in mentality.

This particular lunatic belonged to that group of unfortunates known as "idiot geniuses"—a group of mental supermen who combine brilliance in some one direction with dullness or even hopeless insanity in other directions . . . A sane person rarely has brilliance that is theirs along the only track their mind can run . . . They are perfect examples of possessors of "one-track minds."

An unusual study of the extraordinary achievement of these strange genius-lunatics was recently completed by a famous English physician . . . He tells of one imbecile who had so delicate a sense of touch that he could split a newspaper page into thin and equal layers . . . This eminent doctor not only tells of specific examples of astounding brilliance in many other cases he observed, but tells why the imbeciles act as they do . . . You will find the explanation in one of the many interesting articles in next Sunday's American Weekly . . Read it and gain a better understanding of the human mind!

LIONEL BARRYMORE WILL PLAY LEAD IN "GUILTY HANDS" FILM

Bayard Veiller Writes Murder Mystery for Favorite of Screen

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, June 4—You needn't think for a moment that Lionel Barrymore is giving up directing permanently. Why should he when all the studios are putting in a demand for his services. The eldest member of the "Royal Family" is one of Hollywood's most important character actors right now.

Louella O. Parsons

He has just been signed to play the lead in "Guilty Hands," a murder mystery drama by Bayard Veiller. It's just a little original that Bayard Veiller dashed off while he was having his coffee at one of the Hollywood cafes, but a mighty thrilling tale we hear tell.

S. W. Van Dyke directs and he is the lad who did "Trader Horn" and "Never the Twain Shall Meet." Madge Evans plays the feminine lead. Madge is all grown up and with an air about her that she had even when she used to watch Ethel Clayton emote at the old World studios.

Leo Carideo in Notre Dame Film

OF INTEREST to movie and football fans is the news that Leo Carideo, famous Notre Dame football player, will play in "The Spirit of Notre Dame" with Lew Ayres. This is a Knute Rockne story and is being dedicated to his memory. Another little news item is that Jill Esmond, who has recovered from her illness, is due July 12 to play a part in "Every Girl," starring Mary Astor. Blanche Sweet's grandmother, Mrs. Alexander, is due back in July. Mrs. Alexander writes she has had a good time, but she will be glad to see Hollywood again. If you know Blanche Sweet's grandmother you will realize that like Bebe Daniels' grandmother, she probably vamps every man she meets.

ANOTHER MATRIMONIAL vacation will soon surprise Hollywood. Mrs. Robert Armstrong, the pretty, attractive wife of the well known actor, is taking a holiday that will take her as far as China. This is the way it happened. Jean, as her friends call her, took a course in dancing. She did so well that an engagement to dance at the American Club in Shanghai followed.

THE GIRLS are not getting all the breaks in this town. There is James Dunn, the pet and pride of the Fox lot, a newcomer, too. He has been signed to play opposite Sally Eilers in "Bad Girl." He will also play opposite Linda Watkins in "Sob Sister," by Mildred Gilman. Fox hasn't had such very good luck with their newcomers.

SNAPSHOTS OF Hollywood collected at random: JOHN LODER and GEORGE O'BRIEN going to Mexico on a hunting trip . . . VICTOR McLAGLEN moving into a house in Flintridge. The Beverly Hills community players planning to present a stage play with LLOYD HUGHES, MAY McAVOY, RUTH CLIFFORD and HELEN FERGUSON in the cast. LOIS WILSON describing the FITZMAURICE twins to her interested friends. JIMMIE KEATON celebrating with a birthday party. PATSY RUTH MILLER sick with a cold. The Reingold Hollywood shop bringing out scores of motion picture folk to the opening. That's all today. See you tomorrow

IN GEORGE M. COHAN'S HIT

Minor Watson is George M. Cohan's pal in "Friendship" at the Tremont and his performance is so good Staff Artist Charles Schmidt just had to sketch him.

Donovan's Kid for Keith's

To be Richard Dix's leading lady, especially since his work in Radio Pictures' "Cimarron," is to be a center of fan interest.

Marion Shilling, blonde, petite and vivacious young actress, found that out shortly after she signed to appear opposite Dix in "Donovan's Kid," coming to RKO Keith's. Immediately, her fan mail began to pile up at the studio. It made Miss Shilling very happy of course.

Her greatest enjoyment is sitting at home with her father evenings and reading plays. They halt and discuss the rhythm of the lines, the philosophy, the author's tricks and effects.

Richard Dix has always been Miss Shilling's movie hero, she maintains.

"After I saw him in 'Shock Flight,' I hoped to meet him one day. When I did, I signed for his leading lady. What a thrill that was!"

Bowdoin Square

A good picture and vaudeville all opens today at the Bowdoin square. On the double picture program are Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in their comedy, "Cracked Nuts." The companion picture is "Today," with Conrad Nagel and Catherine Dale Owen. Seven vaudeville acts also are viewed. Tomorrow night extra vaudeville features are added to the entertainment.

Exeter Theater

Warner Oland in "Charlie Chan Carries On" and John Wayne and Zetta Young in "Three Girls Lost," are the attractions for the remainder of the week at the Exeter.

Clive Brook in Film at Met

Should a man, a distinguished attorney, forsake love for duty? Would he alienate the love of his fiancee by exposing her younger brother as an accomplice of a murderer? These are the problems confronting the dominant character in the new Paramount drama, "The Lawyer's Secret," which opens at the Metropolitan today.

Paramount has provided an imposing cast which is headed by Clive Brook and includes Charles Rogers, in his first strong dramatic emotional role, Fay Wray and Jean Arthur.

Helen Yorke, ex-Boston girl, is now at the Keith-Boston.

WILKINS TELLS OF THRILLS AT START

The submarine Nautilus yesterday put out to sea from New London, Ct., on the first leg of her long voyage to the North Pole. Arriving in Provincetown, Mass., this morning, the Nautilus will make several test runs, and will then start on the voyage across the Atlantic, to London Sir Hubert Wilkins, expedition leader, and the experts from Provincetown join Nautilus there early Friday, if tests are successful.

Aboard the Transarctic Submarine Nautilus, June 4 (via Station WRH of American Radio News)—The Nautilus, making between 13 and 14 miles an hour over ground is headed for the submarine trial course near Provincetown

THOROUGH TESTS

There we will make two runs on the surface and two or three submerged runs, testing the thrust of the propeller at various speeds before heading out across the Atlantic

By tonight or Friday if tests prove satisfactory, the first long leg of the journey begins

We hope our start at noon yesterday from the submarine base at New London, Conn., graced by the presence of Captain Brown, base commander, who dispatched us with the best wishes of the navy, and accompanied by the destroyer Hunt, through courtesy of the Coast Guard service, was the real start of the journey

ALL ABOARD PLEASED

The last minute, generous aid from Hobson Pyle Institution and Anthony Fokker (airplane designer), made it possible for me to fulfill my desire to accompany ship from the outset, without the dreaded specter of angry creditors mentioned from ashore

Knowing that the ship is in the competent hands of Skipper Danenhower and his splendid crew, and would safely make the journey across the Atlantic, I would have enjoyed a few more days with Lady Wilkins and would have had a more comfortable ocean liner voyage were it not for the explorers' training, which makes one uneasy when one expedition is starting unless one is actually on the job.

Everyone aboard is greatly pleased at the getaway. No sooner had Danenhower given orders to start the engines than the sun broke through the clouds, a splendid omen, all agree.

ESCORTED BY DESTROYER

We were escorted by the Coast Guard destroyer and patrol boats which was appreciated by everybody—especially me, because it made it possible for Lady Wilkins to accompany us with the escort for the first four hours.

An added thrill was our two way conversation, kindly arranged by Wireless Operator Ray Meyers on board the Nautilus and Ensign Jones, aboard the destroyer Hunt.

Our voices passed from ship to ship. This was the first time this has been done from either the Nautilus or the destroyer. Far from taking romance from the expedition the most cold-blooded of the year

Sir Hubert Wilkins' submarine, the Nautilus, steams out of New London for Provincetown for final grooming before she starts for the North Pole under the ice. The strange ship arrived at the cape today, and after a few more tests will get off on her journey to meet the Graf Zeppelin at the Pole. (I. N. R. photo.)

tion or lessening the adventure this accomplishment through advanced scientific resources brings to us the realization of the great possibilities of following scientific achievement

FEEL HEART THROBS

Notwithstanding all our wonderful machinery, instruments and apparatus, we on board feel that we are experiencing the same heart throbs, the same emotions as our earlier men who set out on great adventures without these scientific aids

We are deeply grateful to all those who made this venture possible. Good luck messages from friends and well-wishers are far too numerous to reply to individually. I would be glad if, through the medium of the press, they would accept our sincere appreciation

Bandits Slay Man Serving Customers

Chicago, June 4 (INS)—Angered because Oscar E. Erickson drove on an ice truck, wanted to get some customers before he yielded to a stickup, two young bandits today shot and killed him.

A family waiting in an automobile to be served witnessed the shooting, which police declared was the most cold-blooded of the year.

NAUTILUS SET FOR DASH

NAUTILUS GOES THROUGH HER FINAL TESTS

Provincetown, June 4 (INS)—Carrying Sir George Hubert Wilkins and his group of 28 men, the submarine Nautilus this afternoon underwent diving and other tests in a general final checking up before leaving for London, en route to the North Pole

The tests were made in company with the United States Coast Guard destroyer Hunt on the government course off the tip of Cape Cod

Besides the diving, there were tests to make up a radius cruising speed of 16 knots, an adjustment of compasses and wireless and a checkup on oil consumption per mile.

Before the tests got under way the radio operator aboard was busy receiving messages wishing a "bon voyage" to the Polar undersea adventurers from all quarters

IN TIP-TOP SHAPE

Sir Hubert, who pronounced the submersible in tip-top shape, said he was confident of negotiating the various currents under the big sea floes in the Arctic without coming to the surface. He pointed to the various scientific apparatus aboard

Commander Donald B. McMillan another veteran Polar explorer, appeared skeptical. McMillan said his experience in the Arctic convinced him that it would be impossible to make the sea journey under the ice without coming up for bearings.

FOOD FOR TWO YEARS

The Nautilus made the run here from New London in approximately 3½ hours and without leaking. Her approximate speed was nine miles per hour

Sir Hubert told those who visited the submersible that he carried enough food to last two years against the court order authorizing merger of the Vacuum Oil Co. with the Standard Oil Co. of New York. The merger would stop unnecessary waste and expense. It is time to get rid of the hampering, wasteful effects of the antiquated Sherman act.

Conrad Siem, an Alaska pioneer of long ago, dead at the age of 71, has traveled out into the unknown in accordance with his own plan. He told Dan Sutherland, Alaska's delegate in Congress, that he wanted to be burned and his ashes "thrown from the Arlington bridge on the Potomac river to drift down the river to the sea."

As you read, the ashes are drifting, or settling on the bottom of the Potomac mud.

Where is the "featherless biped," formerly called "Conrad Siem"?

That's the important question. Has he also gone on floating down the river of time out into the sea of eternity? Or will he come back to be a "pioneer and philosopher" once more?

That is the only question that is really important to all of us, and is the one question we cannot answer.

Last year, Americans ate 1,335,617,903 pounds of candy. Something over 14 per cent of the total amount is supposed to have been eaten by children, which is not enough. Pure candy, of the proper kind, is not merely a food, but an absolutely necessary part of diet in childhood

Candy is important also for the old. Sugar is the best food for the muscles. And the old, with weakened hearts, should feed the heart muscles directly, by eating candy or sugar

Wall Street had a little "rally" yesterday. And while copper sold at 8 cents, and wheat and cotton were weak, it means that our slump is certainly close to the bottom. When you can buy the most important products, oil, coal, copper, wheat, for less than it costs to produce them, you know that business must soon start up again.

When an elevator reaches the ground floor, it starts up. So with business

THE REAL CLARA BOW

Clara Driven to Action by Threats

(In previous installments Louella O. Parsons, famed film critic, who knows Clara Bow, flaming "It" girl of the films, better than any other person in the world described the early years and love of the famous star. Today she relates additional details of the Roa-Da Voe trial in which the latter Clara's trusted secretary is found guilty of theft.)

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Universal Service Motion Picture Editor. (Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc. Reproduction in part or in whole prohibited).

CHAPTER 19

I doubt very much if Clara Bow would have ever filed a complaint against her secretary-hairdresser if she had not threatened her. An indictment with 35 counts of grand theft was returned against Daisy De Voe by the Los Angeles County grand jury.

A jury, after 48 minutes' deliberation, found Miss De Voe guilty of taking $825 to buy herself a fur coat. Judge Doran, who tried the case, suggested leniency and Daisy, who had all through the trial sneering at Clara, was led away to jail.

"Daisy's face was so terrible," Clara said. "She looked as if she could have killed me. I could even see her look of hatred after I went to bed at night."

But instead of rejoicing over the verdict, Clara felt sorry for Miss De Voe and even went so far as to write to the district attorney asking for clemency.

"I didn't want her to go to jail," Clara said. "I never wanted to see her again myself, but the thought that Daisy, who had grown to love luxury and ease and who had been so close to me, was to spend a year in jail made me very unhappy."

Daisy Shunned
Is Girl's Pluck Admired

Miss De Voe has never been known to have any similarly kind feelings of sympathy for Clara. She sneered when she was told of her former employer's expressions of sympathy and seemed to be without a single trace over the injustice she had done Clara.

Even with all the unfortunate publicity printed against Clara Bow, I would far rather be in her position than Miss De Voe's with the record that is registered against Daisy De Voe.

Clara, at least, has the respect of those who know her. Daisy De Voe's acquaintances shun her—not because she has been sentenced to a jail term but because she became certain of the reading public would refuse to see her pictures.

Never has Clara had the courage of a lion when necessary. Knowing the cruel reporters stories were a mass of lies, she refused to pay tribute.

Clara telling me the story said, "I knew I had done nothing that could ostracize me. I knew I was innocent. When Mr. Giraud visited Paramount and insisted that I be taken off the screen, he was told that I had never in my life committed any crime that would justify such a procedure. Mr. Giraud suppose, thought I would pay him a huge amount to keep the articles he printed out of circulation.

"I never in my life felt so brave. 'Let him publish them,' I told my father. 'If I yield to him, he will tell lies about others in my profession.'

"I never really thought he would dare print lies," Clara said. "When I read these cruel, vicious articles I wanted to lie down and die. Rex Bell and I were driving home from the studio. A newsboy ran up to my car and shouted 'Clara Bow exposed.'

"Rex—Have I gone crazy' I asked him. Tell me is it true that that boy is really calling my name."

"Don't read that paper, Clara," he begged. But I already had the paper in my hand. I wanted to die. Never had I read such vile accusations.

"That is when I thought if I could die and go to my mother I could be happy. I was an weary of the notoriety I had experienced and now all these horrible stories, all of them lies."

Clara Bow was a martyr to a miserable publicity campaign. I am ashamed to say I cried in sympathy with her when she put her head on my shoulder and told me the stories of anguish and of the pain she felt at being pictured as a creature worse than any low woman.

Clara Fights Extortion

"Miss Bow," said Mr. Stevens, "had to suffer all this mud spinter even after Miss De Voe had been convicted. Miss Bow wrote a letter to Dist.-Atty. Buron Fitts asking that mercy be shown Miss De Voe, adding: 'The fact is, I would never have called the matter to your attention if Daisy had not attempted to blackmail me and I knew no other way to protect myself.'

"The incident, it is certain," says Mr. Stevens, "had imbued the community with detestation of blackmailers. This sentiment, naturally, will lead to added resistance in the face of such attacks and probably more convictions."

Hollywood has been infested with some species or other of unscrupulous blackmailers ever since it became the home of motion pictures. The magic tales of motion picture wealth has acted as a veritable magnet to draw all types of racketeers. They have preyed on the motion picture people threatening all sorts of undesirable publicity. Rather than run the risk of ruining a reputation that means a livelihood, the stars have in the past frequently become the victims of these blackmailers.

Clara Bow knew if these untrue stories Frederick Giraud published were circulated it would mean that

KIDNAPER SHOT BY YOUNG GIRL

Winona, Minn., June 4 (AP)—Formally accused of murder by a coroner's jury, Roy Ashley of Beaverdam, Wis., lay near death in a hospital today after kidnaping and slaying Evelyn Brown, 15, also of Beaverdam.

He shot the girl after abducting her. Ashley lured her from her home on the pretext of taking her for a ride. When they reached a farm, Ashley stopped to fill the automobile radiator with water.

Evelyn shouted that she had been kidnaped, and Ashley threw a bottle at her. She seized a revolver and shot him in the abdomen. Ashley took the weapon, hit her over the head and drove a short distance. Then he shot her.

Ashley at first said: She shot me then shot herself, but officers reported he threw the girl from the car and shot her through the head as she pleaded for her life.

Slayer of Chinese Quits Death House

Millionth Electric Refrigerator Shown

A replica of the millionth refrigerator manufactured by the General Electric Company was seen publicly today in the display rooms of Gentsch & Thompson Inc., 372 Stuart st.

"This is an occasion of unusual significance, especially in this year," said Mr. Gentsch. "For the millionth refrigerator comes at a time when we have just broken all past records for sales and, best, from present indications, will be our largest—the largest in our history."

TURNS HOBO TO STIFLE GRIEF

London, June 4 (INS)—A one time millionaire today is wandering up and down Scotland as a tramp because his grief at the loss of his son aboard the Titanic disaster is still inconsolable

He refuses to reveal his identity and is known as "Charlie."

"I emigrated to British Columbia from Glasgow in 1910," he told a reporter. "I made money quickly and was soon a millionaire. My joy was complete when my sweetheart, whom I had left behind me in Scotland, sailed to join me.

"Then came the terrible news that she was among those lost on the Titanic.

"I came home to Glasgow on the outbreak of the war and joined up to forget, but the memory of my sweetheart haunted me even in the trenches. When I was demobilized I could not face the prospect of returning alone to Vancouver. So I decided to become a hobo."

NAVY IS CALLED ENVOY OF TRADE

Annapo s, Md., June 4 (AP)—Assistant Navy Secretary Jahncke today told members of the Naval Academy graduating class they were to become America's emissaries of trade and good will

He reminded the midshipmen officers that more and more the nation's sea forces were being called upon to render peace time services to their own country and to other peoples

"You are the contact men between the United States and foreign countries," Jahncke said.

"You are the advance agents of good will and trade and should leave with the foreign people whom you visit, not only a knowledge of our American institutions and ideals, but also a knowledge of the goods we produce and of our facilities to deliver them."

THE PENALTY OF GRAY HAIR

Gray hair—age—stepping. All these unpleasant ideas seem to go together. Yet it is not at all necessary. Gray Hair often comes to a young lad and people who have it are neither old nor homely. But how often you hear people say, "Why, she has gray hair!" and—she is on the shelf.

This penalty need no longer handicap the woman who uses Canute Water. This is a clear, spring-like water, of wonderful properties which actually restore hair to its original girlhood color. No confusion of "color hair" to danger of getting brunette shade when your hair is blonde. Not only the one kind but the one bottle is enough. It really is surprising and wonderful youthifying results it gives.

Apply Canute Water yourself, in the privacy of your own home. Many women in N. Y. are doing the same thing; they simply do not mention it. You need not mention it either. Just buy a bottle from any good druggist—and get rid of the "age penalty" in gray hair. Canute Water is so safe, so scientific and sure that your dealer leaves it with satisfy you; if not, he will refund your money. Sold and recommended by Gilchrist Co., Houghton & Dutton Co., Eastern Drug Co., or your own druggist.—The Canute Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

$800,000,000 U.S. BOND ISSUE 'SOLD' 7 TIMES

Washington, June 4 (AP)—The $800,000,000 bond issue announced by Secretary Mellon Monday was oversubscribed more than seven times when the books closed last night with total subscriptions of $6,000,000,000.

The huge oversubscription surprised officials because the most optimistic of them had not expected the issue would be taken up more than three or four times. The $600,000,000 bond issue last March 15 was oversubscribed four times.

Officials expressed the private opinion that the oversubscription was due to the anxiety of investors to have safe government issues in which to place their funds and to the fact that bankers took advantage of the 3½ per cent interest to put their idle funds to work.

Indications are that the Treasury will sell another issue of bonds when the September financing is undertaken.

It is felt certain an additional bond issue will be announced by December.

LONG TRIAL FOR HATHAWAY

Newport, R. I., June 4—Trial of Elliott Hathaway, Fall River "playboy," for the murder of Verna Russell will consume at least three weeks here, it was learned today.

With the issuing of summonses for numerous witnesses by the attorney-general's office as well as an equally large number by defense counsel, officials estimated that this time would be required for the taking of testimony at the trial, which opens Monday.

Summonses also have been issued to 121 talesmen, the special jury selected by the Rhode Island jury commissioner. Thirteen women are included in this list as well as 10 persons from Portsmouth, the home of the dead girl, it has been learned.

It also was learned the jury will be locked up in the Hotel Viking here during the trial. This is an unusual procedure in Newport County. Special accommodations are being prepared to seat the large number of spectators expected.

MOTHER ILL AS 5 ARE HUNTED

Templeton, June 4—The collapse of her mother at Holden ushered in the first week of the disappearance of Mrs. Hazel Partridge, 32, her two children and two other children today.

Mrs. Nellie Haley, the mother, was reported seriously ill at her home from worry over her daughter's absence.

Mrs. Partridge left her home on Queen Lake rd. last Thursday, taking Ernest, 16, and Marian, 14, and later picking up Helge Strom, 21, and Bruno Strom, 16, brothers. The group were to attend the movies at Fitchburg.

Joseph Partridge, the husband, and Chief of Police Cyrille Leblanc both scout theories of foul play and express the belief that Mrs. Partridge is visiting relatives.

They are charged with conspiracy and contributing to the delinquency of Lydia Nitto, 17, in bringing her here for a hotel party from the "market" Jobelmann and the Day woman are accused of operating.

SPAIN GUARDS ART TREASURES

Madrid, June 4 (AP)—The government issued a decree today, declaring that many cathedrals and churches, as well as a number of private castles, including properties of former King Alfonso, are historic and artistic monuments, belonging to the nation's artistic treasures.

The order places approximately 1600 such buildings under control of the fine arts committee of the Minister of Education.

It was explained the decree does not mean nationalization or seizure of church property.

Actual ownership continues in the hands of the church or private citizens, but "these national monuments cannot be disposed or altered without approval of the government's fine arts committee," the order says.

WHAT, NO PAINT! COLLEGE GIRLS STRIKE

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, June 4 (INS)—One hundred and fifty college girls went on strike and declared war on the Jugoslavian minister of education because their head master prohibited the use of cosmetics in school.

The girls applied for an audience with the minister of education.

The audience was refused, and the girls published an appeal to the public protesting against the master's regulations. The appeal said:

"We refuse to be educated by means of anti-diluvian methods. We think that rouge and lips, polished finger nails and undulated bobbed hair are more important than Greek and Latin and the rest of the trash.

"We do not want to look ugly like our grandmothers. We want to marry. We shall get a good husband without any degrees rather than without a good make-up."

Since the head master told the girls to obey orders the girls went on strike.

ROADS WARNED ON RATE BOOST

French Lick, Ind., June 4 (AP)—Arguments for a protective tariff for the petroleum industry and a warning to railroads against freight rate increases were presented to the National Association of State Chambers of Commerce in session here today.

William Estes, Oklahoma City, also submitted as a resolution a telegram to President Hoover from Congressman Disney, Tulsa, Okla., urging a special session of Congress "to make a complete investigation of the oil business, with special attention to the price-fixing agencies."

In pleading for a protective tariff for petroleum, Estes declared the oil industry "lies prostrate before us, almost a total wreck."

J. E. Fredrich, Kokomo, Ind., president of the association, said it was hard to fathom the reasoning of railroads that move them to ask for increased rates when the earnings of their shippers are low, if not altogether absent, due to low prices of the commodities and diminished production.

DEATH SEALS 'MYSTERY SHOP'

London, June 4 (INS)—Maurice Lyon, wealthy London antique dealer, who closed up his store seven years ago and lived behind its shuttered windows, has taken the secret of his strange action to the grave with him.

Early in 1924 Lyon's antique store was shuttered for the last time, but in the rooms inside remained Lyon attended by two faithful servants. "The shop that was always closed" became the mystery of the neighborhood.

It was said that when Lyon closed the premises he ordered that, until his death, the shutters were never to be raised. He refused to sell the valuable premises, situated next a bank, and would sit at window for hours watching street traffic.

Big offers were made for the premises, but Lyon refused them all.

MODERN 'MOONSHINE' OF ASTROLOGY, 'LADY LUCK,' WHY GREAT POPULARITY?

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

DID YOU KNOW that potatoes planted under Saturn with Mars in a favorable aspect will be larger and sweeter than those which are merely planted under instructions from an agricultural college? Did you know that woods split cleanly or sliver according to whether the trees were set out on a Capricorn day or a Pisces? Do you understand that tonight may be excellent for literary work, but that nothing new should be attempted tomorrow? The Fourth of July will see the upward climb of stocks begun. Why? The stars tell us!

I listened to an astrologist the other evening talking, apparently sincerely, in this vein. A week or two before I heard a so-called numerologist explaining, apparently seriously, that the number of letters in your name, the month and the day of the week would make success or failure of your enterprises.

Why Sudden Popularity?

These are entertainment stunts, of course, and perhaps need not be taken seriously. There are, however, in the United States many little local radio stations that allow practicing astrologers, fortune-tellers, crystal-gazers and palmists to advertise activities for which they collect fees.

I have an idea, however, that even these entertainments in star-gazing and number-reading need to be taken seriously. Their sudden popularity means something.

We feel superior when we read about the influence of Rasputin on Nicholas II. We smile a bit incredulously when we read of the German alchemist recently jailed for swindling General von Laudendorf and others out of nearly half a million dollars by promising to turn lead into gold. Do we forget the "hex" murder trials in Pennsylvania? Do we ignore this widespread broadcasting of "advice" on our future activities based on the position of the planets and the signs of the Zodiac? They must be enormously popular or they would not justify the expense of the advertisement.

One of Kipling's stories in "Rewards and Fairies" tells of an astrologer in the Great Plague of 1665. Knowing that Mars and Mercury were in opposition, he set to work to counteract the workings of Mercury, I think it was. This involved killing all the rats in the village, for the rats were the creatures of Mercury. The rats were killed—and the plague stopped. Not for a couple of hundred years later did man discover why killing the rats ended the plague.

Science Begins in Superstition

All science begins in superstition and works away from it very slowly, conquering the territory of the unknown inch by inch. Kipling's story was laid in the days of witchcraft and alchemy and star-gazing, when herbs were culled in the dark of the moon and noxious vermin under the protection of the planets were used for medicine. And today, in 1931, an astrologer gives advice about potato-planting!

Only a very small proportion of human kind has the slightest conception of what science means. Half-educated, with no possibility of ever being more than half-educated, their knowledge of the world we live in is the thinnest veneer over the old, old human belief in magic and spells. Astronomy is a science for the very few; astrology is far older and still potent. Medicine still struggles against quacks innumerable who can always find clients.

Am I wrong in believing that since the war we have seen a great increase in this sort of thing? Even since the beginning of the depression hasn't it grown? If so, how is it mixed up with the obviously growing craze for lotteries and racing sweepstakes, that blind faith in Lady Luck against which Ramsay MacDonald only this week warned his people. Lady Luck, the philosopher's stone, the favorable aspect of Saturn—what are these but the oldest superstitions of human beings when things have gone wrong, when times are hard and human reason does not seem able to make them any better?

Gilbert Murray, in one of his books on ancient religion, has a name for this sort of thing. He calls it "The Failure of Nerve." That is all it is, and it is the most deadly thing in the world. It is so very easy to shake our faith in human reason, so easy to crack the thin veneer of science which supports all our modern civilization. Once that is cracked, man is left naked and a prey to his fears. When he is fat and well-fed, employed and contented, he doesn't worry—much. But bad times find him the easy prey for every faker and quack.

Denials of Man's Reason

Belief in Astrology and Numerology and Lady Luck is a denial of man's reason, of his prospects for reasonable success in guiding and controlling his life. It opens the door to notions of Fate and Destiny as controlling factors in life. And as soon as man opens the door to these, good-bye to a civilization based on science and reason and an orderly universe under God.

The world of literature and the printed page probably means less to thousands of Americans than if we like to think. Ability and inclination to read isn't everything—but it is something. The radio has undoubtedly tapped a great reservoir of population which even the newspapers hardly reach, of people who do not, in any sense of the word, read; whose ignorance is profound; who do not, literally, know what it is all about. What is the effect on people such as these of a persuasive or authoritative human voice which denies human reason and bids us believe that everything is settled beyond our power to alter by the stars or by the number of letters in our names?

It is not good for people to be told that certain days are likely to be successful or unsuccessful. It is not healthy for people to be told that enterprises begun at certain times are bound to fail, that courtships and marriages lie at the mercy of the stars. It is worse than folly for people in these days to be advised that business will begin to be good only as the Zodiac decides. We are told that even Wall Street lends an anxious ear to this primitive superstition. If that be true, it explains a good deal about Wall Street.

We are a tolerant people, but there are certain things it is not well to tolerate. This insidious preaching of a return to superstition, this subtle undermining of human will and human reason is more than an entertaining way of advertising. It marks the return of something which we thought civilization had happily conquered. Science is sunlight. This stuff is moonshine. For the moon, as Chesterton said, is the mother of lunatics and has given them all her name.

JONES CHARGES WIFE'S LOVE STOLEN

Former Owner of American House Brings Suit in Gotham Against Park Ave Resident

Allen C. Jones, former proprietor of the American House and nationally known clubman, has filed suit in Supreme Court in New York against W. S. Gould, Jr., charging improper relations with Mrs. Jones, it was learned today.

Jones and his wife, Mrs. Marietta Riley Jones, are living apart. He is making his home in St. Mary's st., Boston.

Decision has been reserved on a petition that Gould file a bill of particulars in connection with his answer asserting other men had been involved with Mrs. Jones. The order was requested from Justice Walsh.

IDENTITY A MYSTERY

In his suit, Jones alleges it is W. S. Gould, Jr., of 250 Park ave., who was intimate with his wife. The identity of the defendant is still a mystery.

William Stocking Gould, Jr., son of William S. Gould and grandson of the late Commodore Gould, denied he was the man named in the suit.

"It is all news to me," he asserted. "There must be some mistake. It must be another man."

Attorneys for both Jones and Gould refused to discuss the case.

JONES' THIRD WIFE

The present Mrs. Jones is the former hotel man's third wife. He has been divorced twice, from the former Ruth Robbins, of Roxbury, in 1914 and from Fay St. Clair, stage and screen star a few years ago.

He has one child by his third wife. He is the son of the late Charles A. Jones and succeeded his father in the hotel business. He is a member of the Corinthian and Boston Yacht Clubs and the Interclub Racing Association.

In 1930 Jones filed a voluntary petition of bankruptcy and later revealed he had been forced into insolvency through the operations of a "blackmail" ring.

He is at present associated with the Hotel Security Checking Co. of Medford.

SAVINGS GO RIGHT ON DESPITE $30,000 MELROSE FIRE

ROSEMARY LYONS

PAUL LYONS — WILLIAM LYONS

Rosemary, Paul and William Lyons had plenty of thrills tossed their way last night when fire swept their home on Hurd ave., Melrose, causing a loss of $30,000. First they saw firemen carry their invalid mother, Mrs. Edward Lyons, to safety, and then the three youngsters saved their school bank books. The fire was discovered by a Boston & Maine engineer, who signalled the fire scare to a taxi operator, who summoned fire apparatus. (Staff photo.)

INVALID MOTHER SAVED IN FIRE

Three bankbooks were intact today, their youthful guardians guiding them through a $30,000 fire last night on Hurd st., Melrose, with a worry that was second only to the rescue of their invalid mother. The books represented the school savings of Rosemary, 12, William, 10, and Paul, 8, children of Mrs. Edward Lyons, who lived on the second floor of the three-story wooden building.

Mrs. Lyons was carried out by firemen while her husband and the children, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Wilson and their two children were assisted out.

The blaze started from spontaneous combustion and had gained headway when a Boston & Maine railroad engineer whistled a warning that drew the attention of Henry W. Holden, operator of a taxi service.

Because of baseline scores, the tracks, traffic on the western division of the railroad was interrupted.

Mark E. Ridge, 26, of 110 Draper st., Dorchester was sentenced to a term of three months in the House of Correction by Judge F. Ridge appealed the sentence and was held in $500 for trial in superior court.

He said that when the plane was over the Charles river that he felt a draft, and upon turning his head saw Ridge standing in the cockpit. He said he motioned to him to sit down and then saw Ridge leap over the side of the plane.

DRY MEN SAY HE WAS PAID TO RUN STILL

Gas Burner With No Turn-off Leads to Discovery That Main Was Tapped

Charged with operating a moonshine still after his school hours, Joseph Perloski, 17-year-old Chelsea high school student, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Jenney today.

He entered a plea of not guilty and was held in $2000 for a hearing on June 15.

Dry agents who arrested Perloski in a shed of a tenement house, No. 118 Second st., Chelsea, claim the boy admitted to them he received $10 a week from two men for running the still in off hours. The federal agents are searching for the men who employed the boy.

The raiders claim young Perloski bottled moonshine and prepared it for shipment. They seized 100 gallons of moonshine and 1200 gallons of mash.

The dry agents were puzzled by a gas burner which they claimed had no turn-off. Enlisting the aid of Inspector Joseph Coughlin of the Chelsea police and G. I. Holmes, a gas inspector, the complainants claim they traced the three-quarter inch pipe to a gas main in the street. The dry agents claim gas used without being metered or paid for.

Ramon had not been there. She had taken Tom Lamentier, widowed brother-in-law of Wilke-Barre, on the thousand dollar check that should have admitted Barick himself. Ramon, on one of the absences that was becoming more and more intolerably mysterious to her, was off on a week-end at the shooting lodge of one of the sons-in-law of Mrs. Lmanis Bursilip, an incursion that was fantastic, so far as the burly Harrington Powers, who had married Edith Bursilip was concerned, and which must have been manipulated at no small discretion by his mother-in-law.

But at any rate, Ramon was returning tomorrow and Jenny was lunching with him, quite openly, as they did upon rare occasions, at the Ritz. They must do things out. Oh, how impressive it was that they talk things out! Something corrosive and

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

JENNY HAD been to the closing function of what had been a series of elaborate entertainments in connection with a Street Fair which had been held down the center of Park ave., where junior members of social-register families pinned fifty-dollar carnations on the senior lapels of telephone directory families.

Socially and financially, it had been a success. The Street Fair charity-week had concluded with a supper dance held at the residence of the chairman of the executive committee, Mrs. Grant Fillmore Speigel, Sr., who had contributed her enormous ballroom for the purpose.

Entrance was by one-thousand-dollar check, and then only if you were bidden. It was one of those occasions when the Raricks were sure not to be overlooked. It was the first time Jenny had ever set foot in the old-fashioned Murray Hill home of the Grant Spiegels.

The evening had been sufficiently dull to keep its social inviolability to the fore in Jenny's mind. She had apparently made a personal dent upon the consciousness of Mrs. Grant Speigel, and there was an engagement between them for luncheon three week hence. The evening had been more than justified. But her shoulders ached from fatigue; and once or twice during the supper, which you ate off of knees, the old sense of sickness had overtaken Jenny.

DAILY TRUE STORY

THE WOMAN PAYS

MAIZIE AND GEORGE FLIRT ON A PARK BENCH

THERE'S A LOT that goes on in the show business that the public never hears about or sees. And maybe it doesn't care that show people have problems which aren't solved by the falling of the final curtain.

There was, for instance, George and Maizie. That's how they were billed and they had a rather good act in vaudeville. Not headliners, by any means, but better than the average. They had been together for eight years, on stage and off, and, to put it plainly, without benefit of clergy.

It was just one of those acts— Maizie on a bench with George coming along and flirting with her and then a few jokes with a song and dance. But the way they did it gave them forty weeks every year and they were saving money at it.

That is, Maizie was saving it. She was saving it for both of them but if George had had charge of it they wouldn't have had a dime except on payday. And they quarreled, too. Sometimes they quarreled right bitterly, just like anybody else.

Then Maizie would threaten to leave. George realized that if she ever did he would be sunk. Because it was Maizie who carried the act.

Maizie was pretty enough but she wasn't any raving beauty. But she did have that indefinable something that puts a song or dance across. The patrons liked her and they showed they liked her which meant that they liked the act.

It wasn't so long ago that George and Maizie had a fight that was a lulu. For three days they hardly spoke to each other and when Maizie did speak it was to tell George that as soon as their current engagement was ended she was going to go it alone.

"I'll be on Broadway and you'll be blowing a horn in a tent show," she would tell George. "Any agent would jump at the chance to place me in a single. You just wait and see."

Then, the fourth day, George made her madder than ever

Madder Than Ever
George Offends Maize

"Listen, kid," he said. "Come down off your high horse for a minute. I've got an idea that's a natural. You remember that girl who played on the bill with us last week—Estelle Deming. She's going to quit the troupe she's with. What do you say we take her in with us and make it a threesome. We can get a new act and gag it up. Something about the wife coming home and finding her husband with the other woman and he talks her out of it. What do you say?"

"Swell," said Maizie. "I suppose I'd be the wife and make up to look like the devil, while this—this tramp would be the other woman. Yeah, it's a swell idea. But, instead of making it a threesome, you make it a twosome with her. And see how far you get with me out of the act."

George tried arguing, but it didn't do any good. Maizie was already mad enough and when he tried to tell her how pretty Estelle was and how she would knock them into the aisle Maizie reached the boiling point. When she reached for the hair brush George left without pausing to close the door behind him.

He didn't say anything more about Estelle, but two days later Maizie said plenty to him. She began by showing him a telegram from a vaudeville agent in Chicago offering her a job in a musical show.

Maizie to Quit
Receives Another Offer

"Read it again," she said after George had read it. "You don't see anything in there about bringing George, do you? It says they want me and they wouldn't take you as a gift. Now send for Estelle because I'm quitting."

"Next Saturday we're through. You go your way and I'll go mine."

It took George three hours to do it, three solid hours of pleading, but he did it. He began with the time they met and teamed up. When he reached a tender episode in their life together he bore down heavily and he didn't find time to touch on the rough spots. When he finished Maizie was in his arms and crying.

"I guess you're right," she said. "It's been together too long to split up now. But you'll never even think about bringing another woman into our act. You promise?"

George promised. He promised that he and Maizie would be together always and then he reached for the telegram and told Maizie he would just slip down to the corner and send an answer in her name declining the offer. And Maizie who, after her own fashion, really loved George, was smiling when he left.

Everything Fixed
George's Scheme Succeeds

George didn't send any answer to the telegram. After what he had been through he felt in need of a drink and twenty minutes later found him at the bar of a speakeasy talking to a fellow actor

"Yeah. It's all right now," George was saying, "Maizie has had a good cry and everything's jake. You know, I thought she really meant it this time—that she was going to split. So I had to do some heavy thinking. First I told her about this Estelle dame—that made it up. Then, when she was good and mad, I had a friend of mine in Chicago send me that telegram. That gave her a chance to make a great sacrifice and, boy, how women do like to make sacrifices. Must be the maternal instinct, or something.

"Anyway, it's all fixed. Have another drink."

3 BIG SCHOOLS NEED MORE EQUIPMENT

South End Structure Has Wooden Stairways; Sanitary Conditions Poor

The survey being made by the Boston Evening American in behalf of more and better public schools in Boston has resulted in the discovery of three more schools that need fire escapes immediately to lessen the danger to children.

They are George Putnam School, at Columbus ave. and Dixwell st., South End; Charles Sumner School, at 16 Cummins highway, Roslindale, and Robert Gould Shaw School at Mt. Vernon st., West Roxbury.

Five hundred young children who attend the George Putnam School, one of the oldest structures in the city, are deprived of the safety that fire escapes would give. This building is three stories high and although the exterior walls are of brick, the entire interior, including the stairways, are of wood. It was built 51 years ago

MANY PUPILS IN PERIL

In addition to needing fire escapes this building needs painting and a new system of sanitation. The condemned latrine system is still in use there.

Of the 500 children in this school 245 are sixth grade pupils and the remainder are boys and girls who are members of cooking, sewing, printing and other industrial classes.

The Charles Sumner school, constructed 34 years ago, is a 10-class room, three-story brick veneer structure with wooden interior, including wooden stairs. Four hundred children attend grades 1 to 6 there. Two of these classes, containing 70 to 75 children, are taught on the top floor. The assembly hall is also located on the top floor, increasing the danger in case of fire if all the children were in that room when a blaze started. In modern schools assembly halls are on the ground floor. There is one available school in the yard.

700 PUPILS THERE

Seven hundred children in grades 1, 8 and 9 attend Robert Gould Shaw school, West Roxbury brick building. There are 19 classrooms in this structure. Its interior is in better condition than either of the other two schools as they are constructed of concrete and steel.

More good news for those interested in better public schools came today from Louis J. Rourke, superintendent of schoolhouse construction, when he announced that $50,000 will be spent during the coming summer vacation in modernizing the lavatory systems in from 10 to 12 schools. The old-fashioned latrine system, denounced many years ago by health experts, will be discarded in these several schools and modern systems constructed in their place.

The heating plants in several schools will also be modernized this summer, according to Mr. Rourke.

NIGHT PARKING BAN AMENDED

The traffic commission so decreed today following discovery that the night rules failed to prohibit such parking.

The night rules were amended to take care of a score of omissions.

A smile of satisfaction wreathed the face of Police Commissioner Hultman for he recalled bringing up the point in April and failing to get an opinion from the corporation counsel through the commission.

The omissions were called to the attention of Judge Francis Good last Tuesday when a defendant said a rule police charged was broken did not exist

Judge Good asked an investigation and today's amendments resulted.

COMRADE TELLS LAST WORDS OF O'BRIEN

Sergt. Dill Repeats Conversation That He Had With Him While Latter Was Dying

The dying statements of Patrolman Joseph P. O'Brien, slain Brookline officer, were related today in Dedham court at the trial of Paul V. Hurley, charged with the murder.

The statements were quoted by Sergt. Thomas J. Dill who said he talked with O'Brien while the latter was on an operating table following the shooting in Ivy st, Brookline, last summer.

"I saw two men trying to open an automobile on Medfield st and I asked a man at the Station 3 firehouse to take me so I could follow them," Dill quoted the slain patrolman.

"We followed them and when we reached Ivy st., I got out and searched the smaller of the two. I turned to search the other man and he fired and struck me in the mouth.

SHOT HIM ON GROUND

"When he shot me in the mouth I fired at him and he fell.

"The dirty part of it was he shot me again when I was on the ground."

Dill then testified to descriptions he said O'Brien furnished him while lying on the operating table.

"Was Officer O'Brien conscious or unconscious?" Dill was asked by Asst. Dist. Atty. William P. Kelley.

When the witness replied that O'Brien was conscious Atty. Daniel J. Gallagher, counsel for Hurley, filed an exception when his objection was overruled.

Previous to the questioning counsel held a long conference with Judge Bliss Bishop, during which the jury was excused.

BULLET PIERCED HAT

It ended with the court's announcement that the evidence was to be given with the understanding that if the jury believed O'Brien made the statements with the knowledge that he was about to die, it was to be considered.

Otherwise the testimony was to be ignored, the court ruled.

A gray felt hat was introduced in evidence today in addition to a flashlight and cap of O'Brien's and three shells found at the scene. The hat had two bullet holes in it.

CAR USED IN CHASE AFTER SUPPOSED AUTO THIEVES

One of the government's star witnesses in the trial of Paul Hurley for the murder of Patrolman Joseph O'Brien, of Brookline, failed to identify Hurley, during the trial at Dedham, yesterday. The witness was Albert W. Daniels, who drove his car which carried the patrolman in chasing two suspected auto thieves. He failed to say that the man who shot O'Brien was Hurley. Daniels was also wounded in the shooting affray. The jury is shown looking over the Daniels car. Daniel J. Gallagher, attorney for Hurley, asked the court for privilege of viewing car. It was ordered driven to rear of court house. Thomas G.

SOLONS HIT FOR SCHOOL DELAY

The Legislature was sharply criticized by Chairman Richard J. Lane of the Boston school building commission for blocking efforts to provide modern classrooms for thousands of young pupils now housed in portable and antiquated buildings.

In an address last night before 300 members of the Home and School Association, meeting at the Girls' Latin school in the Fenway, Chairman Lane protested that the Legislature, in its ignorance of conditions in this city, rejected the program to provide seats for the younger pupils and allowed $2,000,000 for two new high school buildings.

'SOFT' POLICE JOBS WIPED OUT

Several "soft jobs" in the police department were wiped out last night when Commissioner Hultman, in an unexpected move, ordered automobile accident investigators back to pavement pounding.

Officers doing this work have a police department car at their disposal and practically no check on their working hours. Their duties are to seek out and question witnesses to automobile accidents and present cases in court if criminal action follows.

Although the investigation of accidents will continue, its "soft job" advantages will be eliminated because police are to do the work only on temporary assignment for the purpose of training.

No officer will be kept on the job for more than two months unless with the personal approval of the commissioner.

Captains were notified that criminal prosecution in accident cases must begin within 10 days after the occurrence unless a delay is authorized by them.

HERO MEDAL FOR YOUNG LONG

Robert L. Long, son of Chairman William P. Long of the Boston park commission, has been awarded the hero medal of the Massachusetts Humane Society.

The medal was bestowed upon him at his home, 44 Tower st, Forest Hills, for saving a 15-year-old boy from drowning beneath the ice of the Fens river in the Fenway last February.

Long plunged into the icy water at a depth of 20 feet and brought up Edward Austin Littlefield of 29 Winthrop st., Roxbury. He is a junior at Holy Cross.

Employment Gain in May Reported

The records of the State Public Employment office for May show an increase in the number of persons wanted by employers and in the number of persons reported placed, as compared with the records compiled in April.

There was an improvement in the demand for building tradesmen into mechanics and machine hands. There was also an improvement in the demand for waitresses for summer hotels and girls for binders and printing shops. During the month, 58 of the 83 ex-service men referred to employers were reported placed. Forty-five of those referred were new registrants.

Chelsea High School Snake Dance Banned

There will be no snake dance by the seniors of the Chelsea high school through the streets of that city.

Police Chief Charles M. Finn today denied an application for a permit for the annual dance because of injuries sustained by three persons during the parade a year ago. The track meet was scheduled for the school gym this afternoon and the horribles parade in the corridors of the school tonight.

Charles I. Silverman of 50 Exmoor rd., Newton Center, was found not guilty in the Newton District Court yesterday of larceny of $263 by means of a worthless check when it was revealed that Silverman was the victim of a clerical error on the part of the bank on which the check was drawn.

Silverman proved that at the time that he presented the check to Morris Feinberg of the Newton Tire Co. his account in the bank was sufficient to cover it. The bank, however, returned the check, reporting the account was closed.

Marry-Go-Round

THE SWEET AND LOW-DOWN ON "TIMID" MAN

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHAT HAPPENS to you before thirty, matters so MUCH more than what happens to you after forty, that you'd fancy Nature would have given all the caution to the youngsters and made the oldsters wild and reckless.

To tell a pretty woman that she is pretty is a natural impulse; but to tell a plain woman that she is pretty is a stroke of state.

HELEN ROWLAND.

Most men have such rapid changes of heart, nowadays, that they have to make love almost as fast as Floyd Gibbons talks, in order to get through the whole program in the time-limit.

Every year, we forget that it rained for two weeks, steadily, LAST May. And, by that same quirk of the human mind, a man always forgets his marital troubles, and picks out the same kind of woman for his second wife as the one who made him miserable, the first time.

No matter how often a man has been married, he always fancies that he MIGHT have found an ideal Wife, if he had kept on experimenting just a little longer.

A man is such a timid creature that he has to have a written guarantee of safety, before he will permit himself to become seriously interested in a woman. But, once he falls, he is afraid of nothing on earth, except that he may not GET the woman.

Nothing makes an average girl so TIRED as the "taxicab snuggle." Yet, there seems to be something about just entering a taxi that makes a man's arm shoot out automatically around a woman's shoulders.

You'd imagine that Reno would be the saddest, instead of the gayest town in America, considering that its path to fame has been paved with broken hearts, shattered illusions, and blasted romances.

Every married man has the right to open his wife's letters, according to a judicial decision; all he lacks is the nerve.

MAKE-BELIEVE

A Thrilling Serial of Post-War Love, Romance and Intrigue

By FAITH BALDWIN

Situation Is Explained to Lorry

By FAITH BALDWIN

Author of "The Office Wife," "Alimony" and other Famous Serials.

IF LORRIMER did not remember, there was temptation in his lack of memory: it was something a clever woman might take advantage of, after all. But he had remembered. Delight discarded that card, therefore, as a good player should. It was useless to her now.

"But I don't understand," Mrs. Lorrimer said, helplessly.

Doctor Mathews came in. Peter announced him, and went out, shutting the door silently, well aware that some drama was being played out, worried, in his loyal heart, about Mary Lou, wondering where she had gone and why. She'd already seen the cook and been regaled with her backstairs, dramatic recital of Mary Lou's entrance through the kitchen and her exit "without a word spoken, and that ain't like her, Mr. Peter."

Mathews, entering, looked from Margaret to Lorrimer. Margaret indicated the other woman.

"Dr. Mathews—Miss Harford. This is—Delight Harford, Dan," she said, unnecessarily, for he had recognized her at once.

The situation, as far as the adults was concerned, was explained to the doctor. He gave certain orders, and Delight was helped upstairs to a guest room where the orders were carried out. Margaret went with her, and Lorrimer, waiting below stairs, went out and talked to Peter—and later invaded the kitchen to see Mrs. Jarmen.

They would only tell him that Mary Lou had gone, that Mrs. Jarmen had seen her "fly" through the kitchen "as if the divil himself was after her, sir"; a scurried run in search of a hat "anyhow" on her head and a coat over her arm.

He returned to the library. He would find out where she had gone. Someone would know. His mother perhaps. He realized with a tremendous shock that he knew nothing about this girl, her background, where she came from. Nothing but her name. Yet for months he had thought he knew her very well.

His mother came downstairs. She said, briefly:

"Will you come up to Delight's room? I've asked her to stay, of course. She has telephoned to town and resigned from the company. Whatever it is they do. Dan says the ankle isn't broken but has been badly sprained. She'll be quite a little while. She wants to see you, or rather Dan does."

They went upstairs in silence, so much unspoken and unexplained between them. Mathews looked at Lorrimer's white face sitting by Delight's bed in the pretty cheerful room, sunk deep in a low chair.

"I want to get this straight," he said. "I've heard the story—now, it seems your mother, Lorrimer, this fixed idea you've had. But I explained to her that it—or something very like it—isn't unknown in medical annals."

"I wish you'd explain it to me," Lorrimer said, dully; "I won't understand, myself. I was so sure—as sure, all those years! And then today—in mind, heart—and I knew, I remembered. I think I must have been crazy!"

"No. You probably reacted to the front terribly disappointed because your plans had gone astray. You couldn't bear being balked, being impatient and hating the verb 'to wait.' Immediately on your return you had a bad accident, you were ill, you were unconscious for a long time, you came to yourself a prisoner. Much that had happened was wiped out. That is to say your most ardent wish, the wish which had not been fulfilled, was fulfilled in the darkness of your subconscious mind. Your best conscious thought perhaps had been of Miss Harford here and the marriage upon which your heart was set. Therefore in your state of mental and physical shock, the interruption to your plans faded from your conscious memory, the wish fulfillment of the subconscious took its place. Having ardently desired this culmination of your hopes you came to believe the marriage fait accompli. Mary Lou—" Doctor Mathews hesitated but went on steadily— "Mary Lou, in assuming the role of Miss Harford, brought nothing to your memory. You simply thought her the girl you had known, come back to you. She stirred no chord in you save to fix your belief that she was Miss Harford because of her accidental resemblance to her. But when you encountered the authentic girl, memory returned. I can't explain it further. Probably no one could. But we doctors have seen many cases of this sort. It was not, however, an explanation which occurred to me before this; although I was frankly puzzled by your insistence upon this apparently unrecorded marriage, as was your mother. And now, I think we'll leave Miss Harford to rest. She can have luncheon brought up here, can she not? It is long past the hour and I've had mine, but I'll invite myself to a cup of coffee if you can persuade Mrs. Jarmen to make me one, while you people lunch."

Mathews rose and looked down at his patient. She smiled up at him and then spoke to Lorrimer, almost timidly.

Tomorrow—Lorry will marry Delight if she insists, he decided. Will she?

BACK TO SAILOR HATS

Even Patou Resurrects Style

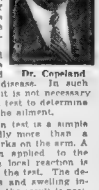
—SKETCHED IN PARIS—

The flat sailor brim and its modifications are creeping into the newer Paris models. Patou shows several slightly drooping but stiff brims, distinctly reminiscent of the classic sailor of 20 years ago. The hat sketched is of pale blue sisal straw with a double ribbon band of pale blue and navy grosgrain, passed through a silver slide at the side-front of the crown.

Tuberculin Tests Aid to Baby's Future Health

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

FREQUENTLY undernourished infants are suspected of having tuberculosis. This is feared if the infant does not nurse well, loses weight and runs a temperature.



Dr. Copeland

By means of the tuberculin test it can be determined whether an infant has tuberculosis or if the failing health is due to some other cause. If tuberculosis is present, these tests give positive evidence.

This method is of no value in the advanced stages of the disease. In such cases, however, it is not necessary for so refined a test to determine the nature of the ailment.

The tuberculin test is a simple procedure, hardly more than a few scratch marks on the arm. A vaccine is then applied to the scratches. The local reaction is the measure of the test. The degree of redness and swelling indicates whether the result is positive or negative.

If the test is reported as negative and there is a doubt of whether tuberculosis is present, the test should be repeated. A positive test on an infant under one year of age usually indicates active tuberculosis.

A positive reaction during the second year is not so serious. Infants of this age, even with a positive tuberculin test, often show no physical signs of tuberculosis. Further, they may never develop the disease.

After infancy the test becomes less and less reliable. The reactions then must always be interpreted in conjunction with the child's state of health.

Much unnecessary anxiety may be caused by the fear of tuberculosis. I know of a case where the parents were told their infant had tuberculosis. These poor people experienced great worry and anguish for many years. Today this infant, grown to manhood, is an active Wall Street broker, enjoying the very best of health, never having had tuberculosis.

We must be extremely careful to form our judgment on the best of evidence. Great harm may be done by a hasty decision. It is almost as bad to have tuberculosis as for one to think he has it. The tuberculin test and laboratory data should be carefully weighed before a diagnosis is made. In the last analysis, these tests are hardly more than suggestions. They are not final by any means. They are helpful, of course, but we must not be misled by them.

Generally, tuberculosis in young children, when properly treated, certainly, may be entirely cured. Your doctor will tell you about the sanatoria where success marks the efforts to cure.

Old Shapes in Straws Return

By PARIS BUREAU

PARIS, June 4—Make way for a sailor in your new hat plans. For the sailor hat, as beloved of another generation that knew not bobbed hair and all the mixed and unmixed bleasings of this modern age, is being featured by many of the leading houses. Of course there are modifications, but in the main many of the models are most interestingly reminiscent of the classic sailor of nearly a generation ago.

It is very interesting to observe how well this type of hat blends with our modern costumes and surroundings. Its lines are most becoming and youthful and it is a hat that knows how to cut a dash despite its apparent simplicity. Many women are wearing sailor hats in rough straws with simple ribbon bands as trimming. Dark blue with light blue and dark blue with white are the most popular and the most attractive color combinations, together with black with white trimming. An ideal hat for general town and country wear.

Patou is showing several hats with the slightly drooping but stiff brims that are very distinctive of the flat sailor brim. The model sketched is of pale blue sisal straw with a double ribbon band of pale blue and navy grosgrain passed through a silver slide at the side front of the hat.

Natural Color Is Best in Rouge

By MISS RUDDLESTON.

THE MAJORITY of cheek and lip rouge used in this country, according to a recent survey, is used by women between the ages of 20 and 50, so it might be well to talk about the application of this beautifying color.

Josephine Huddleston

I know any number of women, and modern women, too, who have been using the almost fragrant, often chemically tainted rouge and in the early days the chemists was used practically without powder. Then, when powder was introduced into the beautifying regime of the well-ordered dressing table, the chamois was first dipped in powder and rubbed over the skin. The next step of importance in the development of cosmetics was cheek coloring. So, after applying powder by means of chamois, the rouge was patted or rubbed over the cheeks. This, in most cases, is where the trouble started.

Since all natural coloring comes from within, it is only common sense that we apply the cheek coloring before the powder. The use of powder over the rouge tones down the sometimes too distant coloring and gives the appearance of naturally rosy cheeks. When rouge is used on top of over the powder the cheek coloring appears to stand away from the skin.

So, if you have been using powder and rouge so long that it has become a habit, and an unctuous habit, start now to bring more modern methods of application into play.

Check and double check on the color of lip and cheek rouge, remembering that it should be of the same color value, if not actually the same shade.

A raspberry shade of lip rouge and an orange shade of cheek coloring simply will not go together, and as there are well over 100 shades of rouge there isn't any real reason why we should attempt to work out any trick color schemes, especially in the use of rouges.

Find the best shade of rouge for your natural coloring and follow it. Use the cheeks rouge to study the placement of cheek rouge, so that the appearance of either is too high or too full face is overcome.

The lips, too, may be properly rouged so as to destroy the appearance of being too thin or too full. Once we know and understand the application of rouge it becomes a friend rather than an enemy and it is a delight looking honestly in the mirror that we come to fully realize the benefits of cheek and lip coloring.

Hints From the Beauty Box

WHEN WALKING, don't jar the body. Have springs in the heels. Jumping along does things to the delicate little hinges of the back bone that don't like the pounding. Bring the feet down on the pavement so that the pedestrian coming your way can't see the soles of your shoes. Don't point toes outward; point 'em straight ahead.

Put hot compresses on pimples. Steaming hot towels heat the pustules. They loosen blackheads, a source of pimples. After the steaming, dry the skin surface gently and put in a powder made of equal parts of bone and baking soda.

PARTY FOR THE JUNE BRIDE

By MARTHA LEE

WE HAVE to have a bride and groom joke every June. So let's get it over with.

Groom (Goodness, dear, what a long pie! It's too big for two!"

Bride—Sorry, dear, but I couldn't get any shorter rhubarb anywhere."

Martha Lee

Honestly though I don't believe there's a June bride in the world who's really going to cook a long pie, especially if she's been coming as many June brides have to the Martha Lee School prior to set to see under the orange blossoms.

Even though there may not be a 1931 June bride on your list of friends and relatives, why not entertain a June bride of previous years with an anniversary party? For the first year it is paper; then second, calico; third, muslin; fourth, silk; fifth, wood; sixth, iron; seventh, copper; eighth, bronze; ninth, pottery; 10th, tin; 15th, pearl; 20th, china; 25th, silver; 30th, pearl; 40th, ruby; 45th, sapphire; 50th, gold; 55th emerald; and all later ones, diamond.

Whether you decide to have a simple buffet supper or a real "sit-down" dinner, here are two recipes that I think will fit into your menus.

WEDDING BELL SALAD

6 pear halves
6 dates
½ pkg. cream cheese
1 tbsp. minced, candied ginger
6 maraschino cherries
Lettuce and mayonnaise

Stuff dates with cream cheese which has been moistened with pear syrup. Sprinkle surface of cheese with candied ginger. Line each salad plate with lettuce. Lay stuffed date on place, surround with mayonnaise. Place pear-half on top (the date will fill cavity in pear) with cavity turned to plate. Cut thin slice off large end of pear to make edge straight and form bottom of "bell." Place candied or maraschino cherry at edge of pear end of pear to form the "clapper."

ANNIVERSARY CAKE

Make your favorite two or three-egg cake and bake it in two layer pans. Fill with this Orange Blossom Filling.

Orange Blossom Filling

½ cup sugar
1 tbsp. cornstarch
¼ tsp. salt
½ pkg. sliced candied orange peel
½ cup orange juice
2 tbsps. butter
1 egg yolk
1 tsp. lemon juice

Put sugar, cornstarch and salt into top of double boiler and mix together thoroughly; add orange rind and orange juice. Add butter and egg yolk and cook until smooth and thick. Remove from fire and add lemon juice. Spread between layers and ice top and sides of cake with boiled frosting and cover with orange coconut frostties.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

Bridge, Beauty Keep Ma Busy These Days

By WINIFRED BLACK

COUSIN MARY ELLEN'S little Mary Ellen is learning how to keep house.

Winifred Black

She gets home from her regular school at 2 o'clock and at half-past three she goes to housekeeping school.

What does she learn there?

She learns to sweep and to dust and to bake and to broil, and how to set the table neatly and how to order meals, so there will never be the same thing to eat two days in succession.

And she learns how lace curtains should be washed and "stretched," never ironed, oh, dear, no.

No good housekeeper ever allows her curtains to be ironed.

And she learns how to scald out the refrigerator and what to do with spots on the tablecloth, and just how to look when the butcher charges you twice as much as he should for the pot roast just because he thinks you are young and inexperienced, and won't know the difference.

Isn't it wonderful for Cousin Mary Ellen's little Mary Ellen to learn all these things?

Cousin Mary Ellen herself?

Why you don't think Cousin Mary Ellen is going to bother with things like that, do you?

Cousin Mary Ellen is president of a child's study club, and she has to read all sorts of books, and go to all kinds of lectures, and introduce all kinds of celebrities to the club. And she has to play bridge, in her spare time —out to the country club she goes for that.

And Cousin Mary Ellen does the rolling exercises. No, she did then last year, this year she's "twisting" to keep slim.

Cousin Mary Ellen takes excellent care of her skin and her hair, and that means a good deal of time.

She says a woman owes it, not only to herself, but to her husband to keep her girlish complexion.

Cousin Mary Ellen's husband has not kept his schoolboy complexion, or his schoolboy figure, either, for that matter.

He doesn't even know about Cousin Mary Ellen's wonderful complexion and amazing girlish figure.

She looks just the same to him as she looked the day he married her, when she was 18 years old, and she'll look that way when she is sixty—to him.

It's that kind of a man.

I wonder what little Mary Ellen will do with all the things she's learning at the housekeeping school—oh, yes, perhaps she'll be a teacher and teach other little girls who have no real home, and no real mothers—how to keep house.

And that will be very nice, won't it?

Miss Fairfax Says Girl's Too Young

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am just 17; my husband is 20. We have been married just a little over a year, although I feel as if I have been married ten. My husband goes out almost every night leaving me home. He does not tell me where he is going or when he intends to return. I have often begged him to take me along with him, only to be refused, then he goes alone. I don't think he loves me, treating me in this manner. I adore him, and he knows it.

Please advise me what to do, as we have a little daughter to consider.

ROSE.

Dear Rose: Perhaps you show too plainly how much you care, and strange as it is, there are people who persist in being blind to their blessings. They never appreciate love till it vanishes. How about your appearance? Do you look as smart as other girls of your own age? You're right in trying to keep the home together on baby's account, and I have you'll be able to write me again and tell me your husband is doing better.

Others may look like Kotex

but how are they made?... where?... by whom? You have a right to know.

WHEN a substitute claims to be "just like Kotex," ask where it is made. How. By whom.

You will find the claim "like Kotex" usually means the pad merely looks like Kotex. That's not enough, when health is involved, as it is in your choice of sanitary protection. Demand the hygiene of Kotex. The absolute purity of Kotex.

There's one way to be sure. Get genuine Kotex ... accept no substitute of whose makers you know nothing Kotex is the world's standard. Hospitals used over ten million pads last year. It is made with hospital care and cleanliness.

Kotex stays soft for hours. Shaped to fit. Adjustable. May be worn on either side with safety.

BANKS' ACTION BETTER THAN BEAR QUERY

By FRANK H. MELOON

Action of the New York and Boston banks in reducing margin requirement or street loans to 20 per cent from 25 per cent was effective in routing many bears in Wall and State sts. It proved much more efficient than the question-naire sent out by the New York Stock Exchange on short selling. A Boston magazine recently published a lengthy article on the great Cuban highway built by Warren Bros. and we were surprised to find in it no mention of the fact that construction was by a Boston firm.

After the so-called "bear questionnaire" was issued some Wall Street writers declared it had weakened the technical structure of the market by causing much bear covering. Thus they strove to account for market weakness Monday and Tuesday. It was stated in this column that we had not seen signs of much bear covering. The scramble to cover following the banks' action in cutting margin requirements has proved rather conclusively that, until the banks acted, the bulk of the bears were still in the brush.

We are likely to hear little today about the technical structure of the market being weakened by bear covering, although in the last few hours it has appeared in the largest volume seen in weeks.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Considering the violence of yesterday's upward move in the leading stocks the market gave a good account of itself today.

Most of industrial and railroad speculative favorites fell off a point or two on profit-taking in the first hour but good rallies were scored later all along the line.

Eastman Kodak Proves a Feature

Eastman Kodak's quick 8-point rise today was the feature of the specialties, the stock responding to an official report of satisfactory business conditions.

Steel at Its Best Since Recent Fall

United States Steel pushed ahead to the best price since its recent fall to 83 with sales numerous around 6 points above that figure.

Utilities Register Best Marks on Move

National Power & Light, Consolidated Gas and other utilities today reached the best levels of the move and the same was true of a few of the rails including Chesapeake & Ohio and Atchison.

New Haven's Jump Feature of Rails

New Haven's 8-point jump was the afternoon feature of the popular investment rails today. New York Central showed a gain of 4 points over yesterday's close and [illegible] points above the low of the week. Baltimore & Ohio was another good ground gainer, advancing [illegible] points, up 9 points from [illegible] low. Commodities Rise Along With Stocks

Some of the economists have been telling the people that advances in commodity prices were needed to put up stocks. Today it looks as if they had been getting the cart before the horse. Commodity markets advanced while stocks were rising.

Some of Houses That Passed It On

W. E. Hutton & Co., J. H. Brooks & Co. and Eastman, Dillon & Co. cut their margins from 25 to 20 per cent, which was the reduction made by leading banks yesterday. Hornblower & Weeks reduced their margin requirements to 20 per cent of the selling price on stocks quoted at more than $25 a share, below which the margin will be $5 a share. Any stock selling for more than $5 will be carried on margin, the firm announced.

Brooklyn Union Gas Attractive

It is noted that in the past two days there has been a tendency in a few quarters to call attention to Brooklyn Union Gas. This stock suffered from necessitous selling just as other issues in the past, but the position of the company and its prospects for being included in a merger later on prompted observers to recommend scale purchases on any further reaction.

Reports have it that close to 25 per cent of the issue is owned by the Koppers, who are affiliated with the Mellon interests. The company is earning about 30 per cent in excess of its $5 a share dividend rate, which is better than most utilities can show.

Reduced Margins Allowed Customers

Several New York Stock Exchange brokers today took advantage of the reduced margin requirements of banks on call loans to make corresponding reductions in their margins from their customers.

Kroger's Sales Show Favorably

Sales of Kroger Grocery for the four weeks ended May 23 made a favorable showing with a decrease of only one-tenth of 1 per cent as compared with the same period last year. In recent periods the company has been showing a tendency toward catching up with last year's volume.

More significance was attached to the latest figures because it was shown that the number of stores in operation during the period had decreased 313 or 5.8 per cent from a year ago.

Superheater Pegged at 30?

Action of Superheater would seem to indicate that sponsors of the stock are trying to peg it at 30 a share. For several days past it has been evident that all offerings at that level have been absorbed. In view of the tremendous turnover at the 30 level, there naturally is considerable conjecture in the "Street" as to how much more stock the "pool" can afford to take at that figure.

No Oil Mergers Likely in Near Future

Although the action of the Department of Justice in declining to appeal the decision in the proposed Standard Oil of New York-Vacuum Oil merger paves the way for such a consolidation in the future, it is unlikely that any immediate action will be taken. This is due largely to the changes which have taken place in the oil industry since the proposed merger was first discussed.

Financing Difficulties Would Be Entailed

According to competent oil authorities, virtually none of the major companies in the industry will combine for some time, due to the difficulties which the financing of such mergers would entail. In addition few of the larger distributing companies at present are anxious to acquire any of the major crude oil producers, due to the unsettled conditions prevailing in the crude oil trade.

SPECTATOR'S VIEWS GIVEN

By SPECTATOR

An illustration of the extreme to which selling has been carried in the carrier stocks is strikingly brought out in the cause of Delaware & Hudson.

Due to adverse monthly earnings this issue was forced down as low as 107½, with rumors that a dividend reduction was impending.

And yet the latest balance sheet of the company discloses cash or equivalent (in securities, mostly United States or Canadian government bonds) of 65 millions, or $126 per share. This is entirely aside from the ownership of the railroad and the coal property, which together, even in 1930, had earnings applicable to the common stock equivalent to $4.60 per share. Earnings in that year from all sources were $10.30 per share in comparison with $9 dividends.

General Bronze Co. Is Not Corporation

New York, June 4—The General Bronze Corp., has no connection with the General Bronze Co. of Pittsburgh which recently went into the hands of receiver. General Bronze Corp. is understood to have operated at a small profit during the first five months of the current year and its present financial position shows an improvement over that of Dec. 31, last.

May Proves a Good Month for Oakland

Detroit, June 4—May was the biggest month Oakland Motor Car Co. has had since August, 1929. Production was 14,829, against 11,972 in May last year. Each month this year has shown a gain in output over the preceding. Early June operations are in excess of corresponding period last year and indicate this month will compare favorably with June 1930.

Gardner Asks Bids on $150,000 Loan

Gardner will receive bids until June 10 for $150,000 loan payable December 31.

Taunton awarded to Bristol County Trust at 100.05, $180,000 3½ per cent water, sewer and macadam loan bonds payable 1932 to 1951. Other bidder was Estabrook & Co., 100.58.

Air Chute Profit Above Last Year's

Irving Air Chute directors have declared regular quarterly dividend of 25c. a share payable July 2. Chairman C. J. McCleod announced net earnings, after taxes, for first four months of 1931 show a 20 per cent increase over corresponding period of last year.

CURB MARKET PRICES WORK HIGHER

New York, June 4—The Curb market resumed its recovery pace after an intermediate period of irregularity today, and in the final hour the rank and file of pivotal leaders forged ahead to new high ground on the drive.

North States Power A set the pace for the utility group with a runup of 4¼ points. American Gas spurted 3⅞ points, while gains of good-sized proportions were noted in American Light & Traction which rallied 2 points; Electric Bond & Share up more than 2 points, New England Telephone up 1⅞, and American & Foreign Power warrants up a point.

One of the early unsettling factors in this list was a severe break in Commonwealth Edison, which slumped 23 points, but it retraced some of this loss before the close.

Cities Service continued to lag behind the other leaders, unable to better its position more than fractionally at its last hour high.

Standard of Indiana gave the best performance in a firm oil list, scoring a gain of 1¼ points. Gulf, Humble and Vacuum also chalked up further moderate price advances.

SWERINGENS CHANGE RULE

New York, June 4 (AP)—The Van Sweringen interests have reorganized the directorate of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railway through the election of a new chairman and three other directors.

Kenneth D. Steere, partner in Paine, Webber & Co., is the new chairman and succeeds Thomas C. Powell. William C. Potter, president of the Guaranty Trust Company, Joseph R. Swain, president of the Guaranty Company and Thomas D. Heed, of Colvin & Co. also have resigned as directors.

They are succeeded by Michael J. O'Brien, resident partner of Paine, Webber & Co. in Chicago; Hugo E. Otte, vice chairman of the National Bank of the Republic, Chicago, and E. C. Hyatt, vice president of the Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Co.

S[illegible], president of Slayton Le[illegible], general distributors of Massachusetts Investors Trust.

On April 30 [illegible] 11,100 trust shares were sold for an aggregate of $336,366.

More shares of Incorporated Investors were sold on Wednesday than on any day in the past 18 months, according to the Parker Corp., national distributors of Incorporated Investors. Wednesday's sales exceeded 12,000 shares.

Calendar Explains Decrease in Sales

New York, June 4 (AP)—F. W. Woolworth Co. today reported May sales of $24,117,367, a decrease of 4.7 per cent from $25,308,840 for the like month last year. Sales for the first five months aggregated $108,300,256, a decrease of 2.1 per cent from the corresponding period of 1930.

H. T. Parson, president, explained there was one less business day in last month, because of there being five Sundays, and the fact that Memorial Day came on Saturday this year caused a loss in Saturday's sales, compared with a year ago, of $1,440,125.

Bond Market Has Moderate Dealings

New York, June 4—The bond market experienced a general advance today, although trading was of moderate proportions most of the time. Even the over-the-counter market was not active, which is not a common condition when the trend is rising. Railroad obligations were plainly the most favored group, as were carrier stocks in the share market.

STRONG RALLY IS REGISTERED IN WALL ST.

New York, June 4—Active short covering and some investment buying combined to give the stock market another strong rally in Wall Street today.

Net gains ranged from 3 to 9 points in the active issues. Extreme rises were cut by profit-taking in the final dealings.

RAILS SHOW VIGOR

Rails displayed marked vigor, and it was their spurt that set the movement in motion early in the afternoon after a period of early realizing.

The rise in the carriers was prompted in part by news that the Great Northern had been permitted by the Interstate Commerce Commission to advance freight rates on coal in part of its territory.

U. S. Steel led the rise in the industrials, soaring about 4 points and closing 3⅝ higher. American Telephone finishing at 170¼, was up 4½.

New York Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Rock Island and numerous other rails advanced 3 to 5. Union Pacific soared 9 but reacted 1. Eastman Kodak was up 8.

General Electric, Radio and American Can closed about a point higher. Case, which had harbored a large short interest, rose 8, while Ingersoll Rand was up 11. Allied Chemical, Western Union and Westinghouse gained 3.

3,200,000 SHARES SOLD

The day's turnover was 3,200,000 shares.

Rails seemed to be helped by news that the Interstate Commerce Commission had permitted the Great Northern to increase freight rates on coal into the Northwest, apparently viewing this decision with an eye to the rate rise request planned by the carriers east of the Mississippi.

Wall Street decided not to pass too hasty a judgment on the rapid recovery. The market has reached several so-called selling climaxes in the last 20 months, only to swing into a reaction.

Investment banking houses got a big surprise in the size of the oversubscription to the new government bond issue, although a heavy demand had been expected. The tremendous inquiry for the 3⅛ per cent bonds speaks eloquently of the vast reservoir of funds awaiting investment.

So far money from this accumulation has flowed only into highest grade issues and bankers have been impatiently awaiting its turn into secondary obligations. New financing in recent weeks has been very small pending the appearance of more settled conditions in the bond market.

Brokers began to pass on to their customers the lower margin requirements of the banks and several firms brought their own demands down to the new rates in the hope of awakening public interest. Lacking outside support the market's chances of a sustained advance without help from the business situation would not be particularly bright.

Endicott Johnson rallied briskly despite the first reduction in the shoe company's dividend; possibly an omission had been looked for.

Grains Higher in Chicago Dealings

Chicago, June 4. Grains closed up today. June wheat, an inactive option, slumped to 64¼ a bushel early but recovered later to finish at 66⅜c or 1⅛c above the previous close. Closing prices for wheat except June were 1¼ to 2⅛c higher, corn ⅞ to 1c better and oats ½ to ⅜c up. Rye advanced 1⅛ to 2⅛c for the day.

Loose-Wiles Has Advance in Net

Chicago, June 4. April net of Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co. was somewhat better than a year before. Lower prices for wheat of which the company uses an estimated 5,000,000 bushels a year as against relatively stable prices of its products places Loose-Wiles in good position to maintain earnings at or near 1930 levels the balance of the year.

Texas Co. Meets Crude Price Cut

Texas Company has met the price cut in midcontinent crude oil made by Stanolind Company, has withdrawn posted prices in East Texas.

They also reduced prices elsewhere in Texas and in New Mexico.

Cream of Wheat to Pay 75 Cts. Extra

Minneapolis, June 4—Directors of Cream of Wheat Corp. at a special meeting declared an extra dividend of 75 cents in addition to regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents, both payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 20.

Pennsy Pays 45.49% Earnings in Wages

Employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad were paid nearly half of the entire income of the company last year, according to an analysis of the company's 1930 revenues. Wages for the railroad's workers required 45.49 cents out of every dollar earned by the road last year.

Passenger and freight receipts on the entire system, plus all revenues from all sources, amounted to $640,401,141 for 1930.

Cotton Higher in New York Market

New York, June 4—Cotton futures today closed 18 to 22 points higher. July, 8.73-75; Oct., 9.11-12; Dec., 9.34; Jan., 9.47; March, 9.64; May, 9.81. Spot, steady; middling, 8.30.

LUCKY MR. KENNEDY INVITES QUERY

Nick or Sonny, Sonny or Nick?
Even money and take your pick
Sonny or Nick, Nick or Sonny?
Jacky, thinks Gus, 'll win th' money!

IF YOU want to get a peek at the next world's heavyweight wrestling champion, why just take your sweetie on your arm and hie yourself to the Arena tonight. Before the good old summer time is over, Henry Deglane, the present Emperor of the Grunt and Groan, is likely to be dethroned and a new rasslin' ruler will hold the crown and scepter. The next Boss of the Beef Trust is likely to be your old pal, Gustavus Adolphus Aloysius Sonnenberg of Dartmouth, Boston and waypoints, or Ed Don George, the corn-fed rah-rah boy from out there at Ann Arbor, where they warble "Michigan, My Michigan." Both Sonnenberg and George are on tonight's card. Dynamite Gus will try out his famous flying tackle on Nick Lutze. Don Juan George, the Heart Breaker, who has all the feminine fans murmuring ecstatic "Ah-h-h-h's" and raptuous "O-o-o-o-o's" whenever he shows his handsome countenance and herculean form on the mat, will endeavor to prove the value of higher education on Farmer George McLeod. Prancing it over the pachyderms will be nothing new to either Sonnenberg or George, for each of them is a former ruler of the rasslin' roost.

This being as good a time as any to let the cat out of the bag, the palpitating wrestling populace herein is informed that when it comes time to stage the big wrestling match for the championship of the universe between Sonnenberg or Deglane, George or Deglane or the conqueror of Deglane vs. Sonnenberg or George, part of the proceeds of the great grappling encounter will be donated to the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American. Bowser, who never has turned a deaf ear to Charity, has given his promise the big match will be held in aid of Boston's worthiest cause.

DOWN UNDER in Australia they are having a good laugh at the expense of the Americans. It seems there was an Irishman by the name of Pat—all funny stories start that way, don't they? This time it is Pat Redmond, the Irish Giant who meets Primo Carnera, the Tall Tower of Gorgonzola, at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, next week. Silvery haired Tom O'Rourke has been leading a New York ballyhoo about Redmond. According to Tawm and New York publications, Redmond was the greatest fighter since the days of Dan Donnelly. In fact, some of the b'ys even compared him with the great Finn McCool.

Finn MacCumhail, or Finn McCool, as he has come to be known, was the stout fisted lad who knocked Laerty of the Victories for a row of tumble down shacks in Tipperary at the Ford of Athlone. And bedad Finn once chased the divil up through Athlone so fast that he crossed Ireland in a hop, step and a le'p. If you don't believe it they'll show you his footprints to this day.

But—Ochone! Ochone! It now seems that Pat Redmond isn't that kind of an Irishman at-all-at-all. According to Jack Elliot, who devotes a whole column to Redmond in the Sydney Referee, Pat was "disowned by the majority of the patriotic sons of Erin as the only Irishman in existence without the ability to fight." Pat turns out to be a queer thing—a horizontal Irishman!

"This Colossus," writes Elliot, "gently subsided under the soft persuasion of George Thompson, Fred Young and Dan McLeod," which is a nice, gentle Australian way of saying that those three palookas knocked Redmond for a loop. "This red headed mountain of flesh, with whom punched-out fifth-raters lasted the distance," continues Elliott, and then states that the sending of "a man who has failed deplorably against ordinary men in Australia, a man who was given every chance again and again, to America with the seal of a good fighter on him," drives him to drink. Elliot says the Redmond affair leaves such a taste in his mouth that only the strongest likker imaginable can kill it.

Well, with the big Sharkey-Carnera match in sight, you didn't think they were going to let Carnera into the ring first with any man that had a chance of licking him, did you?

BELOR[illegible] we put the hammer on the shelf we ought [illegible] a whatzit, [illegible] Burris Jenkins draws of that Middleweight Championship match between Vince Dundee and Ben Jeby which is being staged in New York tonight. The shade of the great Fitzsimmons completely overshadows that type of middleweights. Neither Vince nor Ben even could knock one of the freckles off Freckled Bob's freckled phiz. It is about time we had another regular middleweight.

WONDER what Joe Kennedy, the Negro moulder from Roxbury, will do with that $150,000 he won on the English Derby? You heard the one about Pat and Mike talking it over on what they would do with such a bankroll, didn't you? Pat said he would go to the Parker House and order ten dollars' worth of corned beef and cabbage.

"Ten dollars' worth of corned beef and cabbage!" exclaimed Mike. "Why, a man couldn't lift that much!"

"Now if it was me that won a fortune on the Derby," orated Mike, "I would go down to the Parker House and hire a whole floor. I would leave an order for the clerk to call me at 6 in the morning. Bedad, when he told me to get up I'd tell him to go to 'ell, for I didn't have to!"

Aw, quit your kiddin', Pat!
Why, Sandow couldn't lift it—
If he could, I'd eat your hat!

BENNY LEONARD IN COMEBACK

By ED FRAYNE

New York, June 4 (U.P.)—To begin with, I do hope the audience will refrain from interruptions and heckling during the progress of this narrative.

Leonard is coming back! Benny Leonard, who retired undefeated from the lightweight championship, Leonard, the greatest Jewish fighter of all time!

So at the age of 35, he was born on April 7, 1896, Leonard has made the big [illegible]. He hired himself [illegible] camp at Orange[illegible], N. Y., where he has been in secret training for several weeks.

JOCK GARNER SUSPENDED

Chicago, June 4 (AP)—Jockey Willie Garner probably will be on the ground for a long stretch for his fouling tactics in the third race at Washington Park yesterday.

The famous member of the famous Garner jockey family had the leg up on Tellico, odds-on favorite in the June Time purse at five furlongs yesterday. Coming into the stretch Garner grabbed at Jockey C. E. Allen up on Marcasite.

Tellico came in first by a nose but the stewards disqualified Tellico and gave the race to Marcasite. Garner's license was taken up.

12 Yankee Swimmers to Meet Jap Team

New York, June 4 (AP)—A dozen American swimmers have been named to meet a Japanese team in Tokio early in August.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Amateur Athletic Union that Clarence (Buster) Crabbe of Los Angeles, Austin Clapp, Frank Walton, Maiola and Manuella Kalili of Hollywood; Donald Horn of Chicago, John Schmeiler and James Gilhula of Detroit, Lloyd Osborn and Carleton Leedy of Yale University and George Fissler and John Howland of New York had accepted invitations to make the trip.

The team is to leave San Francisco July 1 and to stop off at Honolulu for the National A. A. U. swimming championships July 13 to 15.

Schaaf Waits Fight With Max Schmeling

By ERNIE SCHAAF
(As told to Jack Conway)

I was sitting reading in my home in Wrentham where I live with my mother and some of my brothers and sisters, when the telephone rang.

I picked up the receiver of the telephone.

"Hello," I said.

"I have just matched you with Jim Maloney at the Boston Garden," shouted Johnny Buckley over the wire.

I use the word shouted as Johnny was quite excited after having closed the title scrap. For two months he had been trying to get Dan Carroll to say "yes" and finally succeeded.

"That's great," I replied. "I'll knock out Maloney in a round."

When I told Buckley I would stop Maloney in a round, I was merely playing with words. I felt sure I would stop him, but I didn't think I would do the job as quickly as I told Johnny I would do it.

Then began the long training grind. I worked out every day under the direction of Jack Sharkey, Johnny Buckley and Al Lacy.

After the first few days of training, Buckley and Sharkey decided not to try to teach me any new angles of the boxing game. They felt it would be harmful to try to jam too much knowledge into my head on the eve of a big fight.

LACY GREAT HANDLER

Buckley called a halt to heavy training three days before the bout and turned me over to Lacy, one of the greatest handlers of boxers in the world. I expected to have Al talk fight. Instead he would turn the conversation to discussions of some of the foreign countries where both of us had visited or chat about the movies, baseball or other matters apart from the boxing game. This got my mind off the fight.

When I started training for Maloney I was quite nervous, but as the time of the bout approached I found myself steadying down. Lacy's apparent lack of concern about the outcome of the match also helped me.

Following the weighing-in ceremonies I was asked to say a few words over the radio.

"I'll knock Maloney out tonight," I told radio listeners.

They then handed the "mike" to Maloney. He expressed confidence in his ability to win, but didn't talk about knocking me out. I think I took some of the wind out Jim's sails right then.

Before I entered the ring, Buckley got me into a corner in my dressing room. We were alone.

"Maloney cannot fight except when he is going forward," said Johnny. "Keep driving in at him, throwing punches all the time. Rough him up as much as possible, but under all conditions keep him on his heels. He cannot punch going away. Follow this system and you'll knock him out."

"CROWD HIM," SAID JACK

Just before I entered the ring Sharkey gripped my hand and got me by myself.

"You're going to knock Maloney out," said Sharkey. "Keep punching and don't let him set his own

SONNENBERG, LUTZE BATTLE ON ARENA MAT

HOW IT'S DONE WITH HALF NELSON AND CROTCH

Sonny, Lutze in Mat Go at Arena Tonight

By JACK CONWAY

It will be a battle between the flying tackle and the double arm lock and reverse back fall when Gus Sonnenberg, Dartmouth's favorite son, and Nick Lutze, standard bearer of the University of Southern California, go roaring into action in their finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Arena tonight.

Sonnenberg's famous flying tackle has enabled him to draw $1,500,000 during his three and a half years of wrestling.

Only twice has it failed him in the big crisis, in his first bout with Strangler Lewis at the Arena when he missed a tackle and crashed to the floor in an unconscious condition, and when he was beaten by Ed George on the coast.

The defeat at the hands of George was probably the best thing that ever happened to Sonny. It made him realize that after all he was only a human being, and that he could not afford to go into action when not in the best of condition. Gus had left a Providence hospital to go to Los Angeles to meet George.

Jack Conway

Following his setback by George, the former champion took a layoff. When he resumed wrestling, he was in perfect condition and has since displayed brilliant form. He believes he will eventually force Henri Digiane to meet him and that he will conquer the new champion.

Lutze Says Superior Speed Will Win

Lutze is of the opinion he will crash through with a decisive victory tonight. This colorful former college star has taken Boston mat fans by storm. I believe he is more popular here than even Sonnenberg.

Lutze has dash and fire in his every movement. His spectacular double arm lock and reverse back fall has swept all before it. George won from Lutze, but only after tough engagements.

Paul Bowser told this writer that Ed George, who meets Farmer George McLeod in another finish bout, has put up his $10,000 diamond studded belt with the promoter. George insists he is still champion. He declares he did not risk the belt in his meeting with Strangler Lewis on the Coast.

If McLeod comes through with a victory this evening, he will be awarded the $10,000 belt by Bowser.

At Morelli, Boston College wrestler, will also appear on tonight's card. He will have Joe Cross, an unknown from West Virginia, as his opponent. Morelli, under the coaching of Stanley Stasiak, has made rapid progress in the mat game. In another year, this youngster should be rated with the stars of the game.

Buck Weaver, former University of Chicago star, who has also been improving with each start, will have Harry Stevens of New York as an opponent.

Len Macaluso, former Colgate star, who was in have met Pat McKay, Irish champion, has been forced to withdraw from the bout on account of the sudden death of his father. Domiana Macaluso. Jake Patterson of Syracuse will oppose McKay.

Dan Koloff, Bulgarian Lion, will swing into action against Howard Cantowine, while Ted Thye of Oregon, will oppose Donnie Muir of Nevada.

Jack Conway Picks Sonny and George to Win Bouts

Jack Conway today picked Gus Sonnenberg to win from Nick Lutze and Ed George to conquer Farmer George McLeod in the wrestling bouts at the Arena tonight.

"I consider Sonnenberg the greatest wrestler in the world," said Jack. "His flying tackle is one of the most crushing attacks known to sport.

"Lutze may nail Sonny with his double armlock and reverse back fail, but if he does I'm willing to go down to defeat with the Dynamiter.

"George, a powerful youngster with a splendid knowledge of wrestling, should keep McLeod down and win."

Conway's 1931 record follows:

SHIELDS, WOOD, LOTT, VAN RYN ON CUP TEAM

New York, June 4 (AP)—Frank X. Shields and Sidney B. Wood, Jr., of New York and George Lott, Jr., and John Van Ryn of Philadelphia today were selected by the United States Davis Cup committee to represent this country in the interzone finals in Paris.

The probability is that Shields will play singles exclusively, with Wood drawing the other singles assignment, and the Lott-Van Ryn combination pointed for the doubles.

Wood and Shields sail tomorrow night on the Ile de France.

Lott and Van Ryn, who have been competing in France, will engage in two international team matches, playing an Austrian team at Vienna June 5-6-7 and a German team at Berlin, June 12-13-14. The American forces then will be concentrated in England for the British championships at Wimbledon, June 22 to July 4.

His father is a retired army colonel, living at 631 Beach st., South Portland.

The winning team was made up of Elizabeth Fallon, Dorothy Doherty, Mary Ryder, Elizabeth Griffin and Capt. Leone Smith. Agnes Sullivan was the extra member.

The high single string for the season went to Helen Shone with a mark of 105 and the three-string mark of 289 went to Elizabeth Fallon.

Brookline Nine Blanks Newton, 3-0

Andy Madden baffled Newton as Brookline high climbed into the lead in the Suburban League race at the Cypress st. field diamond in Brookline, whitewashing Newton high, 3 to 0

The worst that can fall to Brookline now is a tie for the title. Should Brookline lose to Rindge Tech on Friday the winner of the Newton-Somerville game will tie Brookline.

Harry Whelan Stars as Lynn Team Loses

Medford high nine defeated Lynn English high, 9-5, at the Lynn Stadium.

Harry Whelan hit a triple in the first with one on and in the seventh knocked a homer. Chris Sar no starred for Medford.

Taunton on Top

Taunton high won its second game in two days, defeating Middleboro, 20 to 7. Bresnahan made three hits, including a triple and a double.

Jurado and Cotton Tie in British Open

Carnoustie, Scotland, June 4 (AP)—An Anglo-Argentine entente of Jose Jurado and Henry Cotton led the field at the end of the second round of play in the British open golf championship today with 36-hole scores of 147.

In second place was the Scottish-American, Tommy Armour, with 148, and Johnny Farrell, the smiling Irishman from Quaker Ridge, was fourth with 149.

Grouped within five strokes of the leaders were four other Americans, Joe Kirkwood and Gene Sarazen at 150, Willie Hunter at 151 and MacDonald Smith, 152.

Manero and Turnesa Are Eliminated

At 150 also was W. T. Twine, the young Kent, professional who shared the lead yesterday with Cotton and Farrell. At 151 were Marco Churio, another Argentine; Arthur Havers, open champion in 1923, and Abe Mitchell, the British veteran.

Percy Alliss of Germany was tied with Mac Smith at 152. Horton Smith trailed the other Americans with 156, while Joe Turnesa and Tony Manero were eliminated from the final two rounds by their scores of 160 and 162 respectively.

Only the high 60 and ties will play the final 36 holes tomorrow.

Farrell's putting touch deserted him today and he had to work for every hole, whereas yesterday everything seemed to be dropping and he played around without much effort.

Sarazen had a chance to catch the leaders when he holed a seven-yarder for a birdie three at the 17th, but he finished disastrously with a six on the home hole and had to be content with a tie for fifth place.

He and Mac Smith at least had one distinction today—they carried the biggest galleries with them. Most Scotch golfers, playing on his native heath and the home folks are rooting for him to win, while most Scotch golfers, and who are not believe Sarazen is the most dangerous of the American invaders.

Horton Smith was next in the last to finish, but he lacked the deadly accuracy today that is needed at Carnoustie in the play to the queens with iron and wood seconds if pars are to be recorded steadily. His 79 for a total of 156 dropped him well down the list and carried no threat to the Anglo-Argentine leaders.

M'FARLAND AND COX TIED FOR OPEN LEAD

GUILFORD OUT PAUL SETS NEW MARK

By BILL GRIMES

Worcester, June 4—Willie McFarlane, former Massachusetts open champion, put a 73 to his 76 of yesterday and tied Whiffy Cox of New York with a 149 for the lead at the end of the second round of the Massachusettes open golf tourney at the Worcester Country Club today.

MacFarlane was out in 38, but pulled himself together on the inward trip and got a 35.

One stroke behind the leaders is Howard T. Paul, the Rear Hill amateur, while Bobby Cruickshank, Kenoza, with a pair of 76s is tied with Bobby Cruickshank at 152 for third.

Willie Ogg, who led the field in the first round with a 73, was unable to do better than an even 80 today, dropping four first to sixth place, while Emory Stratton, Rose Bure, was deadlocked with Bert Nichols, Belmont Spring, one stroke behind Ogg.

As most of the leaders have been accounted for, Cox and MacFarlane will be on even terms and leading the field at the start of the final 36 holes tomorrow.

Illness Forces Guilford Out

Due to a return of his recent illness, Jesse Guilford of Woodland who was in second place at the end of the first round, was forced to withdraw from the championship this morning.

Guilford was in bad shape during the inward holes yesterday and upon his return to his home in Newton almost collapsed. His physician then ordered him to withdraw from the championship.

After finishing just inside the first 20 yesterday, Howard T. Paul, Rear Hill, stole the thunder in the second round today by setting a new competitive course record of 71.

Paul needed 79 strokes yesterday, but today he turned in the best round of his career. He was out in 35 after three-putting the sixth green and then stepped home in 36, which gave him a total of 150 for the two rounds.

Paul started off with three regulation par holes, but at the fourth, he ran down a 10-footer for a bogie. Off the fifth tee, Paul pushed his shot into the edge of the rough, and failed to get home with his second. His chipped on, but took a 5 when he missed a short putt.

Paul was on the short sixth nicely, but three-putted it for a 4. He was short going to the seventh and came up with a 5. He got a nice 3 at the short eighth and wound up his outward round by chipping in for a birdie 3 at the ninth, giving him a 35 to the turn.

Although Paul was trapped from the 10th tee, a fine recovery and a five-foot putt gave him a 3, and then after a regulation 4 at the 11th he chipped dead at the 12th, after being short with his second, and got his par 4.

He was back on the edge of the 13th green from the tee, and again chipped stoney to be down in one putt. Paul misjudged his second the green, and he failed to get dead the green, as he failed to get dead with his recovery, took a 5.

Cox Starts in Fine Fashion

He played the long 15th perfectly to for a par 5 and then ran in a 15-footer for a birdie 3. A pulled second shot going to the 17th started Paul on his way in a 5, despite the fact that he played a beautiful chip shot which hit the cup, but spun off three feet and he missed coming back.

After a fair drive, Paul played a beautiful second shot to the 18th, applying so much backspin that although his ball hit on the upper terrace, it recoiled back towards the pin and he just missed another 3, getting a 4 and establishing a new competitive record for this course, getting a 71.

Paul's card—

In ..... 3 4 4 3 5 3 5 5 4—36—71

Whiffy Cox, owes his 72 to his control of his putter. Cox had two one-putt greens going out, but from the 10th green to the 15th he took only five putts.

Cox opened his drive to overtake Ogg, with a birdie 3 and after pairing the second and third hole, he three-putted himself into a 4 at the short 5th, but immediately swung himself back into par figures for the remainder of the outward round and did not slip over perfect golf until he yanked his second shot going to the 14th, although his 5 at the 11th, 12th and 13th resulted from his ability to get down with one putt.

Going to the long 15th, Cox was into the woods to the left of the green with his third and apparently on his way to be two over par.

SCORERS ARE STRICT IN BOSTON

By JOE CASEMAN

Boston's official big league baseball scorers are too honest. They call every play as they see it.

That's the right way, of course, but it isn't done in other cities. Consequently none of the Red Sox or Braves gets the breaks that are handed players on other teams.

Star players in other cities are favored by the scorers. Outstanding Red Sox and Braves receive no more consideration than anybody else when rulings are made here.

It is almost impossible for Mickey Cochrane or Al Simmons to reach base in Philadelphia without being credited with a safety.

Nothing but the cleanest sort of hit by the opposition is scored as such in Cleveland when Wes Ferrell pitches for the Indians. Hundreds who saw the Cleveland ace pitch his no-hit, no-run game against the Browns still insist that he was found for no less than three hits which were scored as errors.

Let a player on any team outside of Boston be trying for a record and he will get every hoost possible from the home scorers.

Local scorers don't know that any of the Red Sox or Braves are after records when they make their decisions. That's why so few Hub players ever lead in any department of play.

We happen to have a pace-setter in town right now. Earl Webb is leading both leagues in doubles with a total of 23. If he were a member of some other team, every time he reached second on a drive he would be credited with a two-bagger. Here he has trouble getting credit for all the hits he legitimately makes.

We recall three drives that he made at the Fens this year which honestly could have been called hits, but were ruled errors. If he had those three hits to his credit now, he would be batting for .380 instead of .360 and would be among the first five hitters.

Baseball is supposed to be scored as it is in Boston, but if the leagues can't see to it that scorers in other cities live up to the local standards, Boston scorers should adopt the tactics employed elsewhere.

Boston players should not be made scoring "goats."

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

Maintaining a fixed swing center, which I would term the first of the four golf fundamentals, does not in itself insure a good shot but often it will throw combine with it seriously arcing the ball seeing it that is, with your attention rather than with your eyes. If your head is held still your left shoulder "comes under" in the back swing, as shown in the sketch, as that it is directly underneath your chin and is pointing at the ball.

PIRRONE LOOKS GOOD IN GYM

Paul Pirrone, Cleveland fighter, whose punching powers have won him fame, in his first workout in Boston appeared fit for his 10-round fight with Lou Brouillard at the Boston Garden next Tuesday night.

Pirrone, in his gym workout, showed all the speed and slugging ability which have won him a good ring reputation. Pirrone was a newsboy a few years ago in Cleveland and now he is one of the highest-paid fighters in the mid-West city.

Miss Orcutt Plays Practice Round

Portmarnock, Ireland, June 4 (AP)—Maureen Orcutt, sole American entry in the British ladies' golf championship which starts Saturday, got something approaching a practice round on the championship links today during an international tournament.

"I simply splashed about several of the holes," Maureen said. "Some of the bunkers held enough water to bathe in."

The rain, which had kept her from the links until today, ceased during the night and the fairways and greens were rapidly drying out. It was believed, barring further rain, the course would be in good condition for the first qualifying round Saturday.

SCHAAF WANTS TO FIGHT MAX

pace. Crowd him and drive him back. Center your attack on his jaw. Now go in and stop him."

Maloney and myself had each agreed not to win on a foul. We wanted a decisive result. Fouls have hurt boxing. In most cases the boxer claiming foul is merely taking an easy way out.

Referee Johnny Brassil gave us our instructions. Then the gong. The battle was on.

Maloney kept moving around the ring, flicking his left hand in my face. There was not any force behind this blow, as he was moving away as it landed.

I made a sudden lunge forward and Maloney backed into my corner. I had him pinned.

Jim let drive with a wild right hand punch. I pulled back and took the blow on the chest.

After Maloney delivered the punch his guard dropped. This was my opportunity. I drove a fierce, short left hook to Maloney's jaw. As the sock landed, Jim's eyes became glassy, his mouth opened a couple of inches.

RIGHT FOLLOWED LEFT

His arms remained down. Maloney started to fall forward. As he did, I cracked my right fist to his jaw. He stumbled forward a step, then crashed to the canvas, face downward.

I saw the trickle of blood from Maloney's mouth. I didn't know at the time that my left hook had split Jim's upper lip on the right hand side.

I returned to a neutral corner, then cocked my right hand. I decided I would crash my right to the jaw if Maloney got up. Jim was motionless through the count of seven, then tried to get up, but was counted out by Referee Brassil before he could regain his feet.

Maloney is credited with saying he dropped his hands in the corner because Brassil ordered us to break. I don't know why Jim dropped his hands, but it wasn't as a result of any order from Brassil. The latter didn't say a single word during the 70 seconds the bout lasted.

Maloney now wants to fight me again. I'm willing. I'll fight anybody in the world. It has never been my policy to pick my opponents.

From now on you'll find me trying to knock out my opponents as quickly as possible.

How I would like to get a belt at Max Schmeling's jaw. Maybe I shall some day receive this opportunity. I'll then try to do as much for Max as I did for Shamus.

1500 Dogs Entered in Greenwich Exhibit

Greenwich, Ct., June 4 (INS)—Plans were completed today for caring for 1500 entries in the annual Greenwich Kennel Club exhibition to be held on the Greenwich polo field next Sunday. CARNEGIE AND NOTRE DAME LIST 5 TILTS

Pittsburgh, June 4 (AP)—Contracts embracing a five-year football agreement between Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame were tucked away today.

Jess Harper, new athletic director at Notre Dame, and Clarence Overend, Skibo graduate manager, talked things over here yesterday and as a result games are assured every year up and including 1935.

The Ramblers and Carnegie meet here next Oct. 31. The 1932 game will be at South Bend.

Three Winners in Canoe Marathon

Three former winners of Samoset Canoe Club's canoe Marathon will paddle in the fifth annual race on June 21. Howard Chapin of the Omicron Delta Club, 1930 winner; "Jerry" Mosher of Crescent Canoe Club, winner in 1927 and 1928, and Francis "Sonny" Bingham of Samoset Canoe Club, 1928 winner and record holder, will strive for the laurels.

Water sports will take place at the Spring st. bridge, West Roxbury, while waiting for the paddlers to finish. These events are tilting, bucket, hand-paddle, tailend and gunwale. Suitable cups and medals are the prizes for these events.

FIVE AND TEN

By FANNIE HURST

frightening was at the heart of Jenny.

There was a list of memoranda under the lamp of her dressing-table that had been left there by her secretary, Miss Dang, and holding it down, as paper-weight, a small jeweler's package, with a red seal splashed over it. It contained four dreaming, perfect little pearls, which she had ordered clipped off the end of one of her necklaces and mounted as studs. Ramon's.

The time had come when Jenny, no one the wiser, was resorting thus to the device of clipping such gifts off the edge of her magnificence.

Clipping Gifts

She had already presented Ramon with a star-sapphire cuff-links off the rear end of another necklace; and the large canary-diamond center to another cigaret-case had been pried out by a jeweler and replaced with a blue diamond from a ring which Jenny no longer fancied. The canary had been worth thousands, and it was like Ramon, lover of beauty, to defer selling it, even in the face of needs that clamored.

One memorandum reminded her of an exceptionally early morning-fitting at Vail Soeurs before her 11 o'clock contract bridge lesson. Propped up conspicuously against a Lalique perfume urn was an isolated item: "Dr. Noon telephoned that he will expect you without fail at 1 o'clock tomorrow (Thursday)."

A stab of concern smote Jenny. For the first time since her period at the hospital, sense of the old discomfort had been over her at dinner. Tiresome old body. Well, Dr. Noon would have to wait. Apparently his findings were not bothersome. There was something casual about the message. As it was, the bridge lesson would have to go overboard. Ramon was meeting her early.

Invariably Jenny went to bed with her makeup on. It was as if her frail flesh, tested by function after function to the limit of endurance, could not hold up under the smearing process of having it removed. Jenny slept in her painted lips, her mask of white enamel, and her high and narrow coiffure.

Jenny Goes to Bed

It was this Jenny, in a black chiffon nightdress through which her body shone like a narrow candle, who finally made her way to the room where already lay her husband.

Lightly, in the painted mask off which her lips stared so redly, she placed herself beside him, drawing, over her half of the sheets and coverlets. Lightly, silently, she lay wakeful beside him.

Lightly, silently, he lay wakeful beside her.

Due no doubt to subtleties of presentation, the news that she was to be let in for a surgical operation did not at first come as shock to Jenny.

Good Lord! What was the matter with her? Sitting there in his office, himself seeming so invulnerable to body ill, perhaps Noon had told her everything except the truth. What if I have cancer? Millions of women have had before me. Was Noon holding off facts that might terrify—Nonsense! A man like Noon had no time for subtle psychological evasions. Besides, no man could simulate his kind of casualness...

Good Lord! acting like an old-wife poring over a medical book and reading her own symptoms into every page. Not every woman with a pain in her side had cancer... Good Lord!... Fool—fool—fool—

The very smell of Dr. Noon's offices, she told herself, had been unnerving. They invented everything else, why must doctor's offices and hospitals continue to reek to heaven of the suggestion of antiseptic...

Social Climbing

Then, too, this season of seasons, just when Jenny had made what she considered her most important social wedge! Mrs. Grant Spiegel had undoubtedly taken a fancy to Jenny. Herself, one of the founders of the Cosmos Club, she had all but volunteered to put Jenny up for membership. They had lunched together. Jenny was already harboring the plan of arranging an elaborate function around the dowager figure of Mrs. Spiegel. The surgical operation would put a serious kink in that important plan. In countless plans.

It was difficult to imagine Ramon coming to her through the etheric smell of hospital corridors. Prying nurses! She had successfully kept the period of her observation in the hospital from him. But this time he must know. How curious to be confronted with the need of telling Ramon that she must go to a hospital for an operation.

He had been distrait at lunch at the Ritz the day before. Terribly so, the lurking pain in her side seemed to collide with the fear that kept knocking about in the region of her heart.

There was a card crushed into the hand that was flung high over her head as she lay on the chaise-longue. It was part of the damnable wrongness. It had added to her impending state of high nervousness to receive this invitation from Mrs. Grant Speigel to week-end at her place in Lenox beginning the very day that she had arranged with Dr. Noon to enter the hospital.

An impulse to cancel her 4 o'clock engagement with Ramon at the tearoom the next afternoon flooded over Jenny. But even as she considered, she knew that, punctiliously, dragging herself up from the chaise-longue, she would be at the appointed place at the appointed time.

It was in the intervals between seeing Ramon that revulsions like this could sometimes overtake her. Revulsion of self. A commiserate desire to creep back somehow into the old unevil life with Rarick that dated back to the days when she had first set up housekeeping and had presented a first child to the serious young man who, with his feet on the clay banks of the Meramac and his eyes on the Pyrenees, had wooed her.

Jenny, who had no God in particular, except one she resurrected for herself in times of great stress, felt suddenly and terribly the need of God and Rarick. Her emergency God had last been on her lips in her paroxysms of grief and pity over Avery. She was about to have need of Him again.

(What is the result of Jenny's visit to the hospital? Read tomorrow's dramatic instalment.)

Tunney ON the Dead Sea

Miss Miyo-Ko Miyamori Parachutes Down

CHAMPION TUNNEY AND HIS CHARMING WIFE ON THE SHORE OF THE DEAD SEA.

These three pictures should interest you, for "one picture well chosen tells more than ten thousand words can tell."

First you see Gene Tunney, who wisely collected his million or two and then, while still champion, got out of the boxing game which is a disagreeable game, to put it mildly. He is standing on the shore of the Dead Sea, in Palestine, with his remarkably charming, beautiful and intelligent wife beside him.

Next you see the former champion floating on the surface of the Dead Sea. He floats for two reasons—first, because he is a good swimmer, and, second, because you can't sink in the Dead Sea, even if you want to.

The waters of that ancient sea, which over grow saltier and saltier, are so heavy that they weigh more than the human body that seeks to displace them.

If the air were as heavy as the waters of the Dead Sea, you could float in the air also, but you couldn't breathe it. So every thing is best as it is.

The lower of the three pictures presents an interesting little Japanese girl, whose cunning name is Miyo-Ko Miyamori.

She is the courageous 19-year-old daughter of a prosperous Japanese whose business is brewing liquor out of rice. They call it "rice wine."

This young lady demonstrates that whatever ANYBODY can do a Japanese girl can do. You ask, "What has she to do with Gene Tunney?" and we answer, nothing at all, they never saw each other, but perhaps when Mr. Tunney sees this picture he will say to himself, "I beat the world's champion fighting men and carried away the championship. I wouldn't start that fighting again for a good deal. It's tiresome.

"But there is still the air, I haven't beaten THAT. I think I shall take to flying."

It isn't that one flier more or less would make a great deal of difference to aviation, although Mr. Tunney undoubtedly would be a GOOD flier.

A JAPANESE LADY PARACHUTE JUMPER COMES DOWN.

But if Tunney went into it, thousands of young boys and men would be interested and turn their minds to aviation.

Whoever knows Tunney knows that he would welcome any chance to be useful.

What the beautiful Mrs. Tunney would say about "Air Pilot" Tunney remains to be heard. It might not meet with her approval.

The picture of Tunney floating on his back in the Dead Sea and the little Japanese parachute jumper are interesting as showing how small the world is growing.

One of these photographs was taken in the Holy Land, another far off on the Japanese shores of the Pacific.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Is Your Life Getting Anywhere?

THIS ARTICLE starts in about the Russians, but it's really about YOU . . . about that hopeless feeling you have had lately, that your life isn't getting anywhere.

Elsie Robinson

Three years ago the Russians started what they called "A FIVE - YEAR PLAN." It was a very ambitious plan. It outlined a tremendous program of progress in every department of Russian life — progress such as no other great nation dared contemplate.

The other nations laughed when they heard that plan. America laughed loudest of all.

"What nonsense!" they cried. "How can those Russians accomplish anything in five, or fifty years? Look at them. They're bankrupt . . . starving . . . shot to pieces by revolution. They've no machinery, no stabilized government, no standing with other countries.

Most of them are nothing but filthy, ignorant, lazy peasants—as stupid as dumb animals. Yet they're planning, not only to go ahead themselves, but to lead the world! It's a joke. They're crazy. Ha-ha!"

So the world laughed. But the Russians went ahead, working on that plan. And today their plan is beginning to come true! Already they have pushed America out of her place in the production of wheat. Each day Russia grows steadier, stronger, richer. Poverty, disease, ignorance — she still copes with all these.

But steadily she forges ahead. Up and down the streets of England, Germany, Italy, France and America shuffle the desperate lines of the unemployed. But they're all working hard in Russia. Smaller wages, shorter working hours, poorer quarters . . . but in spite of all this the Russians are succeeding.

THEY ARE SUCCEEDING BECAUSE THEY HAVE A PLAN.

AND BECAUSE THEY ARE CONCENTRATING ALL THEIR ENERGY, TIME, THOUGHT, FAITH AND DESIRE ON THAT PLAN.

Five years ago the Russians were the poorest and most bewildered of all nations. Suppose they had sat down and surrendered to their misery. Suppose they had said: "Something will turn up. We'll get out of this somehow. God won't desert the Russians." Suppose they had gone frantic, fighting between themselves . . . fumbling . . . making passes at thin air—WHAT WOULD HAVE HAPPENED? CHAOS WOULD HAVE BEEN INEVITABLE. THEY'D STILL BE GOING AROUND IN CIRCLES OF DESPAIR.

But the Russians aren't going around in circles. They are going ahead in a straight line. Maybe they won't get all they're aiming for. Maybe they'll make a great many blunders—and be roundly blamed and ridiculed. BUT AT LEAST THEY'RE UNDER WAY . . . THEY'RE GETTING SOMEWHERE.

Have you felt lately that your life wasn't getting anywhere?

"It isn't fair!" you've said bitterly, perhaps. "I guess I've gotta jinx. I never have any luck, like other people. My motives are good. I always want to do the right thing. And, Heaven knows, I'm not lazy. I'm always trying to do something.

"Yet all around me other people are succeeding and I am not. And some of them are worthless people —downright bad. Yet they get ahead, and I can't. It isn't fair!"

Is that what you've been saying? Then you're wrong. There is nothing mysterious or unfair about your life. If it is going around in circles IT'S BECAUSE YOU'RE HEADING IN CIRCLES. You're not getting anything out of life because you're not doing anything with life.

You think you're doing plenty. You're probably as busy wishing and dreaming and rebelling and experimenting as a pup with his first flea. But there is no AIM to all this activity . . . no program—no purpose.

IF YOU WANT TO GET SOMEWHERE IN LIFE, MAKE A PLAN AND STICK TO IT. Maybe it won't be the best possible plan. Maybe you'll fail to achieve some of it. Maybe you'll be laughed at and blamed and forced to revise it. But at least it will get you headed in a straight line.

It will concentrate all your energy in one place. It will free you from the hell of indecision and give you a mounting sense of courage and confidence. And you can bet on this. You'll get SOMEWHERE. And while you're getting there you'll feel like a man. Which is plenty more than you're doing or feeling now, stranger.

New York Day by Day

The Gigolo Industry Is Bankrupt

NEW YORK, June 4—The gigolo industry is bankrupt. As Phil Baker observes, they are now dancing together. Economic conditions coupled with the decline of the night club ended a racket in New York, the spoils of which kept some 2000 young rakes on the top wave.

In flush days after the war many wives who stepped out had a feather-footed "boy friend" who served as escort for pay. Most of them were Latin-Americans, personable appearing blades with olive complexions, brooding eyes and a fund of hand-kissing repartee.

That a number were dangerously scheming criminals is a matter of police record. They have been trailed and often trapped for mysterious apartment house jewel robberies. A few were known to be agent provocateurs for the white slave milieu in Rio Janeiro.

The gigolo in America had none of the manners or morals of the Parisian prototype. While it was never considered a highly respectable calling in France there was about it the air of toleration. The Paris brand were often Sorbonne students dancing for pin money at teas and supper clubs.

They sat at special tables with dancing girls, the ladies sent headwaiters for them, they danced and the charge was on the check. No money was permitted exchanged between them and employers. Nor did they converse with partners unless encouraged.

Yet in New York, they had great freedom. They were carried about to various affairs by foolish women who paid the tariff. Busy husbands permitted them in their homes and seemed to think it was all right for them to appear in public with their wives.

Three very wealthy New York women deserted their husbands and married gigolos. A very rich 72-year old widow eloped to Europe with one and married him in St. Moritz. They are now touring the Far East together. But stern reality has wiped out another post-war madness.

From a movie colu[illegible]: "Columnists often make movie stars."

Blab-mouth.

* * * *

Just when I am determined to turn out a serious column something arrives at my desk to give me the simples. This time it is a special delivery inquiry if Helen Twelvetrees has a foresty complex? And it has me wondering, if such is the case, if it is for cow oak, quaking asp, shagbark hickory or just plain chestnut. Lots of sap here somewhere. Maybe she's an "ad" for the Davey tree folks! Or a relative of Al Woods. And will someone page Sam Forrest?

And somehow even at this late date I cannot figure out why Theodore Dreiser, after receiving $150,000 for "An American Tragedy" movie rights, wants to sue because they desired to change it. For that sum I'd let them change it into a zebra's elbow and toss in my Aunt Ida's hand-painted wash rag for a keepsake.

Mr. Dreiser, to me, always has the owlish look of surprise, the forlorn radiance of the unattainable. A word describing him better, perhaps, is eerie—and don't confuse this with those who have been hit by the Erie! He is a master craftsman. One of the very best in his line. Yet it doesn't seem to me he should take it all so seriously. After all it is only writing books. Peggy Joyce does that.

To the stranger, the cultured side of New York appears remote. Yet in one of the theaters every Sunday night a professional story teller appears to capacity audiences and has for months. Philosophers such as Plato, Xenophon and Socrates are discussed and follows an open forum with all joining in.

Just Folks

The Butterfly

The other day before my eyes
There passed a group of butterflies.

And as from flower to flower they flew,
Bent on the task they came to do.

Bearing the fertile pollen far
I thought how strange God's marvels are.

Fragile and lovely to the eye
Behold the wondrous butterfly.

Gay liveried servant of the flowers
Surpassing any work of ours.

Never I'm sure from brain of man
Could come so delicate a plan.

Only from God's design could spring
So helpful and so fair a thing!

Brandeis—The Old Story of the Prophet

By John T. Lambert

JUSTICE BRANDEIS is back among us again for his Summer vacation.

He is deserving of a happy one. He has served the public with valor, intelligence and integrity.

We think of Brandeis as the dynamic crusader. We admire him as the relentless prosecutor who exposed the insufferable insurance corruption and the brazen pirating of the New England railroads by the Wall Street buccaneers.

Those sensational expeditions, however, do not give us the complete picture of his service. In the cloistered, sheltered sanctuary of the Supreme Court, he has year after year waged desperate battles for the average man who must have a day's work and a steady income to live decently and keep his family together.

Financial experts and economists discuss overproduction, high-speed machinery and other causes contributory to the depression. Few of them remember the high-speed financing.

Call Policy Vicious

In order to evade the income tax, great business corporations decided to disburse their excessive profits in the form of stock dividends. We recall one company whose stock was selling for $5 a share. It skyrocketed to $269. Meanwhile it had issued numerous stock dividends. It cut a final melon by issuing five shares of stock for every share held by the shareholders.

Thus, the government was deprived of taxes. The consumers have since been required to pay dividends not only upon the capital invested but upon the excessive profits converted into stock. Billions in stock dividends were so distributed by the corporations. They are now unable to earn ordinary dividends on the swollen capital and they call this "depression."

A Prophet Without Honor

Brandeis and Holmes of Massachusetts and two other sensible gentlemen on the Supreme Court declared that such a policy was vicious in principle. They declared it would be ruinous to business itself. They saw the day coming when the employe would be thrown out of work as the penalty for the great wealth created by his labors and out of which he had not received his proportionate share.

Five other gentlemen of lesser foresight took the opposite and the conventional viewpoint, and out of the Supreme Court came one of those disquieting 5-to-4 decisions which has scarcely been mentioned during the debacle to which it contributed.

Senator Shipstead of Minnesota says that "good times" will come again, probably much sooner than we expect. But he contends that fundamental, widespread prosperity will not become genuine until Big Business voluntarily reduces its overcapitalizations and gets down to rock-bottom financing again.

Brandeis gave the warning before the blow fell. But everybody was out to make a million then. The goose hung high. Reason had gone mad. He was as the prophet without honor in his own land.

Age and Service

Mr. Fred W. Leamy of Worcester is an employer of labor. He is a young man, and could be expected to incline to all the predispositions in favor of youth in industry. But hear what he has to say:

"The philosophy of the modern employer that an employe loses his worth when he reaches forty-five and ought to be thrown into the junkpile is both savage and economically unsound.

"The older man may not move so fast, but he gets his work done. He concentrates better. He is experienced, and knows how to save energy, which means time and dollars. He is more careful with the stock and tools. He is less liable to stay away from work and report the next morning with a 'big head' or some other excuse.

"When I go into a store I make it a point to pick out an older person, either man or woman, to wait on me. I do it for two reasons, first, because I can ordinarily expect better attention; secondly, because I realize that our older employes are now 'on the spot' and are being carefully checked by employers anxious for an excuse to get rid of them."

Mr. Leamy's views will command more than passing attention. They will provoke debate and argument. They are interesting. At least they contain the essence of human kindliness.

Wider Roads Needed

Urban Sections Suffering

When the gentlemen at the State House tire of spending the public's money on great highways in the rural, slimly-populated sections of Massachusetts, they should devote some attention to the urban sections, rich in population if not in political influence.

The day is here when we need four-track highways if not parallel highways connecting the great centers of New England.

The road between Boston and Providence is an example. Much of it is still a two-lane highway, which might have served its purpose in the days of the stagecoach when it was "The Post Road."

On holidays and weekends, it is jammed by many thousands of cars, moving at a snail's pace. The traffic must adjust itself to the speed of the slowest car in the entire line, which, at times, reaches for miles.

We are being assessed plenty for modern thoroughfares. They should be built not to suit the convenience of the politicians who have influence at the State House. They should be built to meet the convenience of the hundreds of thousands of autoists because it is they, not the politicians, who pay the bills.
